TROOPS UNDER ARMS TO STOP FRISCO BATTLE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—The Kaufman-Langford fight for this afternoon has been officially declared off. Louis Blot the promoter decided not to conflict with the local and State authorities following notice that troops were ready to act.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—With State troops under arms awaiting orders to stop the Langford-Kaufman fight this afternoon if the promoter, Louis Blot, should persist in his defiance of Governor Gillett, and the city and county officials should fail to prevent the battle, the excitement and suspense over the Jeffries-Johnson battle were temporarily relegated to the background to-day. Blot was jubilant over the fact that Judge Van Nostrand had refused to enjoin the battle on the plea of Attorney-General Webb. He persisted in his declaration that he would himself carry the case to court and enjoin the opposing officials.

GOV. GILLETT "PASSES THE BUCK" TO OTHERS.

Governor Gillett has certainly "passed the buck." His departure for Sacramento has left the affair all up to Administrator Lauck, Attorney-General Webb, District-Attorney Fickert and Chief Martin.

Reno is still to the front in the running for the Jeffries-Johnson fight. In fact, it looks to-day as if the city of Weeping Cupids were the favorite despite the fact that Tex Rickard had accepted tentatively an offer of $120,000 to hold the big battle in Goldfield.

Rickard sent a telegram to Reno to-day explaining his plans and saying that he would meet the committees from Goldfield and Reno Sunday. When the report spread that the fight had practically been given to Goldfield citizens of Reno, who had offered a free license and free arena, got busy and the wires to Frisco were kept warm. Rickard replied as follows:

A. J. Ainsworth, Reno, Nev.: The rumor that I am playing Reno against Goldfield is false. I will ask nothing more from Reno than has already been offered. My choice should the fight go to Nevada, must depend on my judgment as to which offers the best gate receipts. When these definite I will be glad to take your letter and wire. Until then I cannot. I will be there ready to meet committee from Goldfield and Reno some time on Sunday. I absolutely will not demand or accept a larger bid from either town than has already been offered.

(Signed) TEX RICKARD.

He sent a similar telegram to Goldfield. In whichever place the battle is fought both Jeffries and Johnson apparently entertained no doubts about the big mill coming off on July 4.

Fighters Ready to Move

Both are preparing to hustle their camps over to Nevada at once, so that they will become accustomed to the dry, arid air.

Manager Sam Berger sent a message to Jeffries last night to pack up all training outfit except such as will be needed until the getaway to-morrow.

From Sacramento Governor Gillett today wired to Attorney-General Webb in San Francisco that if Promoter Louis Blot persists in staging the Kaufman-Langford fight this afternoon, he has troops ready to move at once. The message to Webb reads:

"Just received word that Blot intends to get out injunction against Martin and Fickert. Investigate matter at once with General Lauck and if Blot is true get everything ready to move troops."

Martin is San Francisco police chief and Fickert district attorney of San Francisco. At the same time the Governor sent this message to Lauck:

"See Chief Martin. Tell him my understanding is that Kaufman-Langford fight is to be ordered stopped the very moment participants enter the ring. If this is not agreed to, then tell him you will have troops on hand to do so. Let me know at once what he does."

Both Sides Defiant.

The situation to-day is the most tense that has arisen. The moves in the campaign for the Jeffries-Johnson bout, July 4, pale beside it. In fact, the outcome of to-day's crisis is expected to decide once for all time the future of fighting in this State.

Both sides, the fight men and the Government officials, are equally decided in taking the stand to fight to a bitter finish for what each is striving to attain.

Promoter Blot reiterated to-day, in stronger terms than ever, that the fight is coming off to-night. He is nothing daunted by the ultimatum from the Governor and chief of police. It is likely that thousands of sports will gather at the ringside, and that the show will not be declared off until the State or city shows its hand. Of course there will not be any bloodshed, but Promoter Blot is anxious to have the State's alleged bluff called.

Governor Gillett said to-day: "This fight will be stopped, and there will never be another one while I am Governor of this State."

Chief of Police Martin had a long conference with the Governor. It was not until the Governor became emphatic in his resolve to send troops to the ringside to stop the fight that Chief Martin gave in.

Chief Martin Yields.

"Rather than have San Francisco openly disgraced by the appearance of State troops to enforce the Governor's order I will stop the fight myself," said the chief of police.

Governor Gillett, however, is determined there will be nothing to upset his plans, so he has ready four troops of militia.

Sporting circles Friday are watching the outcome of this latest move in the game the fight promoters are playing against the State officials. The outcome will not be until to-night. It will decide the future of the Jeffries-Johnson bout, as well as the future of fighting in California.

WOMAN FINDS TRUNK TRAGEDY

NEW YORK, June 18.—The mutilated body of a middle aged man was found by a woman squeezed into a trunk in the hallway of the tenement at No. 51 Goerck street to-day.

The body was identified as that of Moses Sacks, sixty years old, a dealer in jewelry. Sacks disappeared Thursday. He had with him at that time a satchel containing $2,000 worth of jewelry.

The police arrested three foreigners, one of whom, it is alleged, is an ex-convict. The prisoners, the police declare, admitted on yesterday's examination that they sold the old man some jewelry yesterday afternoon. He was not seen alive after 1 o'clock.

MAN SHOT DEAD; WOMAN DYING

PORTLAND, June 18.—Walter Hanscom was found dead and Mrs. Annie Stuart was found dying in Bickford's stable at Cape Cottage to-day. Both were victims of revolver shots, but the police are puzzled as to just how the shooting was done.

One view is that Hanscom tried to kill the woman and then committed suicide himself. Another is that the woman killed Hanscom and then attempted suicide.

Mrs. Stuart is a hotel employe. Her husband has been in the West for ten years. Hanscom is a hostler.

TIED IN BED WITH 40 FEET OF ROPE

After being tied to his bed with forty feet of clothesline, while an intruder was ransacking his room, William C. Flynn of No. 10 Dix street, South Boston, appeared against William McGrath, aged twenty, of No. 770 East Sixth street, in the South Boston Court to-day, charged with breaking and entering his house. Young McGrath pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000 bail.

Flynn said he was awakened by the pressure of something about his body. Opening his eyes he saw a young man, who he identified as McGrath, tying him to his bed. The intruder fled.

How Roosevelt Looks at the End of His Journey

This photograph of ex-President Roosevelt was taken aboard the steamship Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, on which he arrived in New York to-day. He is shown standing between two members of the Southampton, England, farewell committee, the Mayor of that city being on the left. This photograph, taken expressly for the BOSTON AMERICAN, was put ashore at Southampton and rushed to Boston by a faster ship than Roosevelt's, thus reaching this country ahead of him.

OH, CHEER UP, FOR TOMORROW WILL BE FAIR

Good Old King Sol* came out from behind the clouds early to-day and smiled pleasantly, and the Weather Man followed with a promise of fair weather to-night and to-morrow.

This promise of a fair Sunday will bring joy to the hearts of thousands who had planned to spend the day at the seashore and in the country. It was said officially that there was no particularly warm wave in sight for Boston and vicinity, but the temperature was expected to be "reasonable"—a term that people in this part of the country have begun to look upon with a great deal of distrust.

The clouds still hang lightly over eastern Massachusetts and grow heavier in the more northern sections of New England. In the South and West there is good June weather.

This has been a month of roses and—rain. The total rainfall for June has been but 2¼ inches, though it has rained on ten of the seventeen days since the month began.

It may be rather startling to know that since January 1, or during the last 5½ months, only thirty days have been absolutely clear. January had eight clear days, February but one, March seven, April three, May only one and June to date only one—only five clear days since April 1. On about thirty other days since January 1 clear weather prevailed for a few hours.

FATAL ACCIDENT TO LITTLE SCHOOLGIRL

Agnes T. Riley, eight years old, is dead at her home No. 22 West Canton street, South End, as the result of being caught in the wheel of a carriage driven by Constant Q. Ring, salesman of cisterns for the Boston & Albany Railroad, as she was on her way home from school Tuesday.

TINKHAM TO URGE NEW YORK MILK LAW HERE

Senator George Holden Tinkham has sent a letter to Mayor Fitzgerald, calling his attention to the fact that the Legislature has prorogued without enacting any law to improve the quality of milk coming into Boston daily. He urges the Mayor to adopt the New York system, which specifies that the licenses for the sale of milk shall be issued by the Board of Health, and that every producer, no matter where his farm may be situated, must secure such license before being allowed to sell milk to this city.

Portions of Senator Tinkham's letter reads:

"The recent regulation of the Board of Health of the city of Boston concerning the delivery of milk in bottles is of but slight benefit if the milk in the bottles is not good and pure. The only sane and sure method of properly safeguarding a milk supply is to inspect it at the source, namely, at the farm.

Notice to Holders of Flag Coupons

The demand for flags by BOSTON AMERICAN readers has been so enormous and so far in excess of all expectations that the flag manufacturers are unable to supply us with flags as rapidly as required. We already have in our office all the orders for flags that we can safely guarantee to deliver by July Fourth. On that account we regret that we are compelled to inform our readers that only those orders now in our office can be delivered by the Fourth. All orders received between now and July Fourth will be delivered as soon after that date as possible.

GREAT CROWD WELCOMES ROOSEVELT

Former President Says He is Devoted to Solution of Country's Problems---Some Jars in Reception.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Theodore Roosevelt came home to-day. He was given an enthusiastic reception with booming guns, and cheers, both on land and water, taking part in an imposing marine display and parade through the streets of New York. Immediately after landing he pledged himself to put his shoulder to the wheel and help solve the problems that confront the United States. He uttered no word as to whether he would support the administration or the Insurgents in Congress. He leaves at once for Oyster Bay, where he will stay to-night.

WELCOMED BY TENS OF THOUSANDS.

The State and National welcome to Mr. Roosevelt was extended to him while he was still on the water. What the welcome city was given when the ex-President landed at the Battery after the marine parade in which he took part on the revenue cutter Androscoggin. There was one faint cheer as he stepped ashore.

The formal reception at the Battery was interesting. With tens of thousands cheering, Mayor Gaynor was escorted there by a squad of ninety mounted police, one of whom carried the Mayor's flag.

The Mayor welcomed the returned traveler and then Mr. Roosevelt replied briefly, after expressing the welcome Mayor Gaynor said:

"We are here to welcome Mr. Roosevelt home to New York. We have watched his progress abroad with delight. He has been honored wherever he has gone as a man and as exponent of the principles for which the American Government stands. He has been received throughout Europe with greater honors than any other man has ever been received."

The uproar as the ex-President and the Mayor said:

"We are glad of all that, and now all that there remains for me to say is that we are glad, heartily glad, to welcome you here."

Saluted by Twenty-one Guns.

The marine parade welcoming the former President was ten miles long, and hundreds remained up all night to gain points of vantage.

SENATE STARTS LORIMER CASE INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The Senate committee on Privileges and Elections to-day authorized a favorable report on a substitute for the Lorimer resolution, involving the matter of alleged bribery in connection with the election of Lorimer as Junior Senator. The substitute is more sweeping and comprehensive than the original resolution and directs that an investigation be had in alleged corrupt practices in the Illinois Legislature involving the election of Senator Lorimer. It is the opinion of the members of the committee that a committee will conduct the investigation late this Fall and present a report at the opening of the short session in December. There is no disposition to begin the investigation at once.

Senator Burrows, shortly after the Senate convened, reported the substitute resolution, and without objection it was referred to the committee on the contingent fund to consider the matter of expense. This committee is expected to dispose of the matter at once and will probably report next Monday.

HELD AS CHURCH THIEF.

Frank L. Marham of No. 10 Summer street, Charlestown, was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury on the charge of breaking and entering St. Eulalia's Church at City Point, when arraigned in the South Boston Court to-day. Marham denied the charge, but the janitor of the church said he had discovered Marham hiding under a pew.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, June 18.—With the prospect of showers hustling in the Doves and the Cardinals determined to start their double-header matinee at the scheduled hour and work off as much of the postponed scraps as possible.

It was the farewell appearance of Bresnahan's bunch, as they were forced to catch an early train for the West, and the two teams were anxious to hustle the brace of contests through and settled the delayed arguments.

The Doves with one game in storage went after some more, as they wanted to improve their standing while the opportunity looked good. Bresnahan said he would not be satisfied with less than an even break and worked hard to secure it.

THRILLING TALE OF A LUCKY BOARDER

Owen Doherty lives on the fourth floor of the four-story dwelling house at No. 243 Cambridge street, East Cambridge, and lets one of the rear rooms to a boarder. Early to-day a rifle ball crashed through the window in the boarder's room and lodged in the mattress. Prior to the discharge of the rifle the boarder had left the room, and had remained in bed he would have been shot.

MEYER'S CAR RUNS OVER LITTLE BOY

BEVERLY, June 18.—An automobile owned by another one owned by Postmaster-General George von L. Meyer ran over seven-year-old Edward Chase to-day on Hallroad avenue, breaking the boy's left leg. Mr. Meyer's car was driven by Chauffeur L. S. Battis and the other by W. R. Nixon. The accident happened through the skidding of the second car. The boy was taken to his home in Hamilton. He is the son of Charles H. Chase.

KEITHER WITNESS IS BAILED

Francis J. Wood, the grocer friend of William J. (Big) Bill Keither, who was arrested on the charge of having committed perjury when a witness at the Keither trial and was locked up to the Charles street jail in default of $2,500 bail, employed John R. Murphy as his counsel to-day, and Mr. Murphy made a trip to the Postoffice building, with a view to seeing about bail.

Bail was accepted for Wood at 11:30. David McCarthy, an old-time South End grocer, of No. 249 Albany street, furnishing the bond. Two others who had been brought to the office of Commissioner Hayes by former Senator Gartland were not acceptable, as each of them was not qualified to furnish surety in $2,000, the amount required.

Look for New Arrests.

Immediately after his liberation, Wood, accompanied by Lawyer Murphy and former Senator Gartland, went to the office of Assistant District Attorney Garland, where they all conferred for some time. It was said that Wood has an excellent reputation, and his friends insisted that some mistake must have been made in reference to him.

It is said that warrants have been issued for the arrest of four other witnesses on the charge of having committed perjury at the trial and that they may be entangled in the meshes of the law at any time, and to the effect that a number of those who testified at the trial had not been tried at perjury was heard in and about the Federal Building to-day and that Mr. French, district attorney, and Judge Hale were much worked up about it.

In rounding up the gang of faro sharpers which Mr. French has announced he proposes to do, it was hinted to-day that an investigation of their work in Boston would probably result in some members of the police force being called in as witnesses.

Keither is in the Charles Street Jail. His friends had little hope of raising $50,000 bail to-day and they said the big fellow would have to spend Sunday in prison, if not a longer period.

Continue Walsh Search.

George W. Coleman, who has been locked up off and on in the Charles Jail and in the East Cambridge Jail since his sentence to fifteen years imprisonment, is now in East Cambridge prison. He will likely remain there until Mr. French is through with the faro cases.

James Simmonsetter's case will come before the Grand Jury next Wednesday and if he is indicted he will be brought over from New York and proceedings against him started here.

In the meantime the search of Martin J. Walsh is going on by Government sleuths and they have hopes of bagging the alleged king of the faro gang.

ROOSEVELT RETURNS; PROMISES TO HELP SOLVE PROBLEMS OF NATION

demanded the National salute of twenty-one guns in honor of the ex-President. The salute is the same for a President, but in the navy the value of the saluting ship is not mnnned nor is a special flag exhibited for a retired President.

With the guns of two forts and a battleship booming out a presidential salute, Mr. Roosevelt came into port to-day after an absence of fifteen months, during which he has journeyed more than 26,000 miles.

"Back from Elba" on the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo, he received a welcome such as no other private citizen has been vouchsafed in America. City, State and nation united to do him honor, while Rough Riders whooped their joy and even multi-millionaires shrieked to the best of their ability.

Skies Clear as He Arrives.

Roosevelt luck favored him at the end of his journey. The weather, which had been rainy during the night, with his vessel, the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, slowly poking her nose through a dense fog, cleared early in the day, and the bright sun shone through a thin haze, assuring complete success of the great pageant prepared for the wanderer.

It was 7:40 o'clock when the liner reached quarantine, and the Dolphin, yacht of the Secretary of the Navy, swung alongside, bearing, besides Secretary Meyer, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and the two members of the Cabinet who served as Mr. Roosevelt's advisers — and Captain Archibald W. Butt, aide to the President and formerly aide to Mr. Roosevelt, who carried a letter from the President to his predecessor.

Several craft in New York waters and many from foreign ports in the lower bay had ship dressed and fuss afluttter, as the liner moved majestically up the channel for the official greeting from the Nation.

Along the west shore front of Manhattan hundreds of thousands of persons were banked to catch a glimpse of the ex-millionaire warrior parade from quarantine up the Bay and the North River to Fifty-third street, and then back to the Battery at the lower tip of Manhattan. The fog had held the Kaiserin up somewhat, but early in the morning the wireless flashed the word that she would be approximately on time. At the appointed hour the fleet of welcoming boats took up the journey down the Bay. In the van were the excursion cutter Manhattan, bearing members of Mr. Roosevelt's family; the cutter Androscoggin, with the reception committee, and the Dolphin.

Greets His Children.

Of all the events of the busy arrival the one that stood out most prominently was the meeting between Mr. Roosevelt and the members of his family whom he had not seen in fifteen months. The close friends and relatives of the ex-President had been heard from several times since Saturday. Far down the bay, with the lines of ships reaching for mile upon mile as a background, and the skyscrapers of Manhattan visible beyond them, the little cutter steamed alongside the gigantic liner.

Peering over the rail of the Kaiserin, high above the smokestack of the Manhattan, could be seen the former President, surrounded by members of his party, getting his first taste of the splendors arranged for him.

For the moment he was not the man of the day—he was a mere satellite in a more than a long trip. Archie he saw first, piping shrilly and shaking a handkerchief with all his might.

Leaning far over the railing Mr. Roosevelt called in a stentorious voice to the boy.

Then he made out the other waving stripling below as Quentin.

"You look bully, Quentin," was his salute.

And the lads yelled back together.

Miss Alexander There.

But the smile they got was dim compared with that the ex-President gave to the one face that out-rose prominently in the meeting between Mr. Roosevelt and the members of his family whom he had not seen in fifteen months. Other Relatives There.

Besides them there were Mr. and Mrs. T. Douglas Robinson, Monroe Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt, G. Hall Roosevelt, Miss I. S. Hagner, secretary to Mrs. Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Roosevelt and George E. Roosevelt.

As the ex-President led his party—Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Longworth, Miss Ethel Kermit, and his secretaries—down the side ladder the passengers on the Kaiserin set up a great cheer and the Manhattan answered with a blast of the whistles. Greetings over, the party assembled about the breakfast table in the Manhattan's saloon.

In the meantime, the ships to participate in the marine parade or bearing spectators were assembling off Clifton, S. I., the parading ships being in double column 500 feet apart with the head off Stapleton. In the same formation the other vessels lay on the lines extending to a point off Robbin's Reef lightboune at the mouth of the Kill von Kull.

The Androscoggin pushed through the lines, having the right of way, with the Rod or more official welcomers at the rail's edge, craning for the first glimpse of their guest.

The Androscoggin neared the Manhattan, there was a moment's parley, and then Mr. Roosevelt went over to the vessel that was to bear him through the parade, leaving his family upon the Manhattan.

Mighty Roar from Ships.

Three long blasts from the Dolphin, flagship of the parading fleet, signalled the news of the transfer of Mr. Roosevelt to the official boat. Then, simultaneously, the vessels burst out with a mighty roar, a whistle lasting two full minutes. At the same time the guns of the gigantic South Carolina banged away at the salute.

From down the bay came the boom of the guns of Forts Wadsworth and Hamilton, guarding the Narrows. The other government vessels joined, torpedo boats, cutters and smaller craft, and everyone let go and grew hazy in the smoke of its guns.

During the din Mr. Roosevelt, with his teeth showing in the familiar smile and waving that he was "feeling fine," grasping the hands of the committeemen in valid fire fashion.

Captain Archibald Butt waited till Mr. Roosevelt was aboard the Manhattan before presenting the letter from President Taft, and at the same time Adjutant-General Verbeck, representing Governor Hughes, presented a congratulatory letter from the latter.

Gay as Schoolboy.

Mr Roosevelt was most happy over the reception accorded him. He was on the bridge of the Kaiserin when he saw the first of the welcoming ships. At his first sight of the South Carolina he jumped up and down like a schoolboy, waving his hand and yelling to the newspapermen and all others present, swung up at last a bread sought "Well, by Godfrey."

On the Androscoggin he was scarcely less effusive. He appeared to be as tickled at the presence of a battleship as a child with a new toy, and time and again he pointed to the great gun that was and asked, "Isn't she a beauty? This is one of the best parts of it.

A little incident at quarantine showed the fondness which Mr. Roosevelt has. The two mail boats, the Postmaster-General and the President, swung up to the Kaiserin and gave the regulation salute. The clerks paused for an instant in the process of taking on the sacks, and Mr. Roosevelt rewarded them with a wave of the hat and cry, "How are you there?"

Rough Riders Disappointed.

Cold to fresh cool and still hot, he disappointed the Rough Riders, who had hoped for khaki and puttees at the least.

Mr. Roosevelt on the Androscoggin watched the manoeuvring of the conglomerate armada with interest. As on the trip he was beset by newspaper men. He had been greeted first by a group of them on the tug John H. Gilkinson, and they were at his side nearly all the way. Also a few cameramen and photographers had a flotilla by themselves. Representatives of scores of periodicals, American and foreign, were on hand. Several papers had special tugs. The Hamburg-American line ran a large tug for the accommodation of news gatherers, and the revenue cutter Seneca was given over to them by the paraders. They were on the Androscoggin and the Manhattan besides. How many hundreds of photographs were taken to-day no one can estimate.

The movements of the marine parade were governed by a system of code signals. Five minutes before the parading of the starting order the attention signal was run from the signal yard of the Androscoggin. Then came the single letter P—meaning "Prepare to start in ten minutes."

"It looks bigger than the fleet that went round the world," said Mr. Roosevelt, gazing in those moments at his with a flagging smile. His enthusiasm was irrepressible and there was little chance for conventional dignity on the part of the committeemen greeting him. His patent joy was too infectious.

Eighty Ships in Line.

The start of the marine parade was made to the screeching of whistles which bore the message to Manhattan's crowds, miles away.

The Androscoggin passed between the two files of vessels. Then, one by one, the other ships swung into her wake and the single file swept up the bay and the parade was on. Rear Admiral Leutze, U. S. N., commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, commanded the naval ships.

On the Androscoggin Mr. Roosevelt was presented with the gold medal that had been struck especially for him. Commissioner Vanderbilt, presenting it, said:

"As chairman of the committee appointed to receive you on your return, I have the honor to present this badge to you in behalf of the committee."

"I cannot express myself with sufficient emphasis and appreciation," said Mr. Roosevelt. "I am glad to see you and to thank you, and I deeply appreciate all this committee has done."

When the great line of ships started on the long course, there were more than eighty in line. In the surrounding waters, with whistles tooting and spectators cheering, were fully 200 vessels, big and little.

First went the revenue cutter Patrol, followed closely by regular Navy craft. Destroyers Calumet and Hudson and the steamers Manhattan and Seneca followed, representing the navy contingent.

Behind the Dreadnought South Carolina came five torpedo boat destroyers, the Smith, the Reid, the Flusser, the Lamson and the Preston. Then came the heart of the parade—the reception cutter Androscoggin, flags flying, gay and bright, bearing Mr. Roosevelt and the citizens' reception committee. It was this craft that set the throngs looked about the city to see. The cheering as it churned up the river and then swung back.

Behind came the revenue cutters Seneca, Mohawk and Manhattan, bringing up the rear of the government ships.

Extends for Miles.

Commodore Daltell was in the van on the merchant fleet, on his flagship, the Dalzelline. The twelve divisions of this section extended in a string for miles. In the first division, the Albany, bearing the Republican Club of New York, led with the Commodore, and the Manhattan Club, Chicago, and the Nassau, carrying the Roosevelt Republican Club, Five ships in the second division and the third was commanded by Vice Commodore Charles Hechscher. Five ships in the fourth and seventh in the fifth division carried hundreds of enthusiasts. The six boats of the sixth were commanded by Commodore E. F. Moran. Thirty-three tugs, yachts, lighters and excursion boats formed the other division.

Four fleet past the North River was decorated and beyond them could be seen the Roosevelt escort, behind. Five ships in the division and the third was commanded by Vice Commodore Charles Hechscher.

Five ships in the fourth and seventh in the fifth division carried hundreds of enthusiasts. The six boats of the sixth were commanded by Commodore E. F. Moran. Thirty-three tugs, yachts, lighters and excursion boats formed the other division.

Four fleet past the North River was decorated and beyond them could be seen the Roosevelt escort, behind. Five ships in the Stars and Stripes. As the boats passed up the river the people on the shore in the Jersey shore, the close-packed throngs on the Battery and the crowds on the roofs and further up the lower reaches of the historic palisades, cheered the ex-President, while the ex-President waved in answer, while hundreds of megaphones and leveled. There was the hum of Manhattan on the downward run, when, after passing the Battery, the straight-up-and-down street the line followed the eastern channel, hugging Manhattan.

Parade Ten Miles Long.

So long was the line that when the leader of the fifty-third street had run full of the parade was scarcely under way and when the cutter with Mr. Roosevelt came to off the Battery the rear guard had left the city. At that point, bound north, the parade resumed its great proportions. The ships bended in opposite directions, a good ten miles, Mr. Longworth and Mr. Hall in the way it passed through a great fleet of excursion boats, the passengers on the steamers and all the other types of river craft, each with a full quota of whistles. Greetings passed, it was saluted by whistles and in the case of the guns. Cheering was continuous and became greater on the downward journey, and as the ships saluting the north-bound boats, the parade virtually passed in review.

It was at the Battery that the people of New York got their first glimpse of Mr. Roosevelt at close range, in the reserved enclosure into which the guests stood, and in the great stand itself were over a hundred dignitaries of the city. Here was Mr. Roosevelt's family and close friends occupying the private box arranged for Mr. Roosevelt and her friends by Lewis Nixon.

Protected by Guard.

About the speakers' stand there was a special squad of picked policemen, and besides three secret service operatives guarded the former President. In the private box occupied by his family were also secret service men, and still more were scattered about the crowd.

With the end of the ceremonies at the Battery the police cleared the way along the western edge of the enclosure and Mr. Roosevelt passed through the court of honor accompanied by Mayor Gaynor and Comptroller Wanderlip, the latter the chairman of the reception committee, to the first car of the parade, the Rough Rider.

Major General Charles F. Roe, under whose escort Mr. Roosevelt with his staff about on horseback a bit, gave a few orders and signalled the start. The notes of the bugle rose clear and loud, and the parade through the lanes of the city metropolis was off, with Mr. Roosevelt bowing right and left.

Rough Riders Escort.

The order of the procession was:

Squad of mounted police, Squadron A band, mounted; Rough Riders escorting former commander; Mr. Roosevelt, Mayor Gaynor and Chairman Vanderbilt in carriage; carriage bearing Senators, Governors, committeemen and other celebrities; Seventh Regiment band. (100 pieces); squad of mounted police.

READY TO SOLVE NATION'S PROBLEMS, SAYS ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, June 18.—Ex-President Roosevelt, in replying to the address of welcome made by Mayor Gaynor at the Battery, declared that he was eager and ready to do his part in helping to "solve problems which menace the welfare of the greatest republic, is to see its destiny rise to the high level of its opportunities."

He expressed his pleasure at again being in his native land and declared that he loved. The speech, which was brief, follows:

"I thank you, Mayor Gaynor. Through you I thank your citizens and through them I wish to thank the American people for their greeting. I need hardly say I am most deeply moved at the reception given me. No man could receive such a greeting without being made to feel both very proud and very humble.

"I have been away over and a quarter from America. I have seen strange and interesting things in the heart of the frowning wilderness and in the capitals of the mightiest and most highly polished of civilized nations. I have thoroughly enjoyed myself, and now I am more glad than I can say to get home, to be back in my own country, back among people I love, and I am ready and eager to do my part as far as I am able in helping to solve problems, which must be solved if we, of this, the greatest republic upon which the sun has ever shone, are to see its destinies rise to the high level of our hopes and its opportunities.

"This is the duty of every citizen, but it is peculiarly my duty; my sun who has ever been honored by being made President of the United States therefore can ever after be rendered the debtor of the American people and is bound throughout his life to remember this as his prime obligation, and in private life as much as in public life so to carry himself that the American people may never have cause to be sorry that once they placed him at their head."

WELCOMING OF ROOSEVELT COST HALF A MILLION

NEW YORK, June 18.—It costs more than $500,000 to welcome Theodore Roosevelt home. Conservative estimates made to-day give that figure for the minimum; the total is in reality probably larger.

The expenses of the reception committee were nearly $20,000, according to one member, and this was contributed by the committeemen. But besides this there was the heavy expense of decorations, display of vessels in the harbor, the decorations of the streets, the other hundred and which the city was given a new dress for the day and the great outlay for carfare on the part of delegates from distant parts of the country, including the Rough Riders.

WOMAN SNUBS ROOSEVELT ABOARD RETURNED SHIP

NEW YORK, June 18.—On the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria to-day there arrived Mrs. Carlos R. Duque, wife on an attache of the Colombian legation at Washington, who told how she had flatly snubbed Theodore Roosevelt on the trip from England. She was accompanied by her husband and Miss Isabel Dupuoss of Panama.

It refused to shake hands with Mr. Roosevelt," said Mrs. Duque to-day, "because it is due to him that Panama is not the possession of the United States and not of Colombia, as it should be. Mr. Roosevelt took it upon himself to be the peace treaty between the United States and Colombia in regard to rebellions in either land has made him the most hated man of the whole country. There is hardly a man or woman in Colombia who would shake hands with Mr. Roosevelt as I did."

Mr. Duque because of his official position objected to his wife's statements, but she refused to change her words.

The incident which occurred when Captain Ruser of the liner was introducing Mr. Roosevelt right and left, caused much comment on board.

SPEAKER CANNON AND ODELL STAY AWAY; "JOE" BUSY

NEW YORK, June 18.—There were a few persons who at one time or another had been expected who were absent from the Roosevelt welcome to-day. One was Vice-President Sherman, detained by illness in the family. Governor Hughes sent a proxy. Uncle Joe Cannon found business too strenuous to get away and Charles Murphy of Tammany Hall, though named on the committee, found it impossible to attend.

Another absentee was ex-Governor B. B. Odell, Jr., who declined to accept appointment on the State Republican committee's delegation.

ITALIANS SEEK HOME HISTORY OF CHARLTON

By VANCE THOMPSON.

COMO, Italy, June 18.—The Italian police who are investigating the mysterious murder of Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton have made vigorous protests to the Italian government against the enormous influence which they claim has been brought to bear at Washington with a view of compelling the case.

In the tangle of that complication, they say, Porter Charlton has disappeared, and they insist that this disappearance is not beneath the waters of Lake Como.

As one result of the police represen a-tions, instructions have been sent to the Italian Ambassador to make all efforts to unravel every part of the life history of Charlton and his wife for use in the criminal investigation, which will be vigorously carried on here. The Ambassador has been instructed to procure, if at all possible, the following information:

Mary Scott Castle's father, who left her husband and now District Attorney of Nome, Alaska, why he returned six wife's love letters, which were found upon her body in the fateful trunk, and whether he wrote to his wife after her marriage to Charlton, if she complained of Charlton's treatment or told him that Charlton beat her while they were staying at the Hotel Sulzer, Como.

From Judge Charlton of Washington, D. C., Porter Charlton's father, whether his son ever showed any symptoms of insanity.

In all of these inquiries there is indicated the desire to discover some real motive for the murder.

COL. HATFIELD SEEK FUND TO ELECT LODGE

The first skirmish line has been put forth in the campaign for the re-election of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. Acting under orders of Chairman Charles Hatfield, the old guard of the Republican State Committee has quietly slipped forth to see how the land lies, and within a few days dispatch carriers are expected back at headquarters with news which will engender be received by those in command.

For not only is the advance guard now on the battlefield to look over the situation of their enemies and to count the ranks of the Republican members of the Legislature in the hope that they will find no deserters, but they are also to do a bit of foraging. In fact, it is believed that whatever the result of the primary vote the members of the last Legislature they will do all in their power to collect the largest campaign fund ever seen in the political history of Massachusetts.

VINCENT CLUB GIRL, BRIDE OF WENDELL'S SON

MISS BARBARA HIGGINSON

MISS HIGGINSON BRIDE TO-DAY AT BEVERLY FARMS

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Most of the brides have been compelled to share honors with the Country Club dances the last week, but to-day Miss Barbara Higginson, who wedded Barrett Wendell, Jr., had the entire field to herself, and her wedding was the largest and most brilliant the North Shore has witnessed for many a day. The ceremony took place at St. John's Episcopal Church at Beverly Farms, and was followed by a reception at the Summer home of the bride's father, Francis L. Higginson at Pride's Crossing.

Miss Higginson, who is tall and slender with the prettiest of chataigne coloring, made a lovely bride in her ivory trimmed of satin and her long lace veil. She had only one attendant, her sister, Miss Juliet Higginson, as maid of honor.

J. A. Lowell Blake was the best man, and the ushers included Crawford Slagden of New York; Edward Bowditch, Jr., of Albany; Arthur H. Morse of Kansas City; Francis L. Higginson, Jr., of London, brother of the bride; William G. Wendell, brother of the bridegroom; and Norman W. Cabot of Brookline.

Miss Higginson is a Vincent Club girl, and for several years was one of the prominent danseuses of that exclusive organization. Her only married sister is Mrs. Philip Sears, who returned from abroad just in time for the wedding. Miss Higginson came out the same year with Miss Minna Lyman and Miss Anne Lindsey, who were then and are now among her most intimate friends. A couple of years ago Miss Higginson and Miss Lyman went abroad with Miss Amy Lowell, when the former spent most of the time with the home of her brother at his London home. She is one of the most philanthropic girls of the exclusives set and among the various charities in which she is actively interested is the Hawthorne Club, in which she is an efficient officer.

Mr. Wendell, who is the son of Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard University, and Mrs. Wendell (born Greenough), made his home with John A. Lowell Blake, his classmate Harvard, '02, before Mr. Blake's marriage, and after Mrs. Blake's death joined Mr. Blake again at the Beacon street house. Mr. Wendell's sisters are Mrs. Geoffrey Wheelock and Miss Edith Wendell.

This was also the wedding day of Miss Frances Cleveland Lamont, daughter of the late Daniel S. Lamont, Secretary of War in the cabinet of President Cleveland, and Francis Le Baron Robbins, Jr., of Washington, son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Francis Le Baron Robbins of Greenfield. Both young people are so well known in society here that their wedding is of wide interest. The ceremony took place in Grace Episcopal Church, Millwood, Westchester county, N. Y. The Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins of Englewood, N. J., brother of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Charles Gilbert, rector of the church.

The bride was attended by her two sisters, the Misses Elizabeth and Katherine Lamont, and Miss Mary Alice Robbins of Greenfield, sister of the bridegroom. Sherard Ashman Morgan of Washington was the best man, and the ushers were Henry Hopkins, Jr., Harold Norton Louden, Marshal Bartholomew, Arthur Newell Coppethwait and Lloyd Reeves Smith, all of New York, and Professor Lewis Perry of Williamstown, Mass. A reception and breakfast followed at Altamont, the country home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Daniel S. Lamont.

Mr. Robbins graduated from Williams College in '06 and from the Law School at Harvard two years later.

Among the guests at the Bird-Shaw wedding on Tuesday was Mrs. Edmund D. Codman of Beacon street, beautifully gowned in an exquisite Paris creation of old blue voile with white hat trimmed with blue plumes the same shade.

SEARCHING FOR BABY'S MOTHER

The State Board of Charity is trying to locate "Mary Riley," the widow who abandoned her four-months-old baby, William, and who signed her name but no address to a note pinned to the child's clothing.

The abandoned baby was found by James Calnan of No. 78 Warwick street, Roxbury. In the rain of Sunday, Bunker Hill night he spied the child tucked away in a corner of his doorstep. The note on the child's white coat read:

"Dear Lady—Take my baby to a home. I have five others. My husband is dead. I cannot support him any longer. His name is William Riley and he is four months old. Your distracted mother,

MARY RILEY."

Before giving the boy to strangers to bring up, the State will try to find the woman who wrote the note.

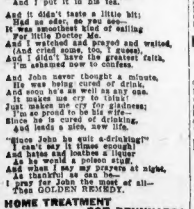
Since John Quit Drinking

By John's Wife



I'm the happiest little woman,
In all this little town;
And my merry laugh and singing
Takes the place of sigh and frown.
For JOHN HAS QUIT HIS DRINKING,
And is like himself once more,
And the world is just a paradise
With happiness in store!

One day I read some verses—
"Mary's Miracle," the name,
And I said, that's John exactly,
And I'll send and get the same,
So I sent for GOLDEN REMEDY,
(As sly as sly could be)
And I put it in John's supper
And I put it in his tea.

And it didn't taste a little bit;
Had no odor, so you see—
It was smoothest kind of oolling
For little Doctor Me.
And I watched and prayed and waited,
(And cried some, too, I guess),
And I didn't have the greatest faith,
I'm ashamed now to confess.

And John never thought a minute,
His was being cured of drink,
And soon he's as well as any one,
It makes me cry to think!
Just makes me cry for gladness;
I'm so proud to be his wife—
Since he is cured of drinking,
And leads a nice, new life.

"Since John he quit a-drinking!"
I can't say it times enough
And hates and loathes a liquor
As he would a poison stuff.
And when I say my prayers at night,
As thankful as can be—
I pray for John the most of all—
Then GOLDEN REMEDY.

SHERWIN L. COOK'S REPLY TO DRAPER

Your Excellency greatly underestimates popular feeling if you believe this agitation for the improvement of the public service and the cry for justice to the chief city of the Commonwealth emanates from only one source. If I have any reputation, however slight, it is of a man who is neither a boss nor a henchman, and I decline to accept that rating in regard to Mayor Fitzgerald, even from Your Excellency.—*From Sherwin L. MRS. HOWE, 92, PLAYS PIANO

To her many other wonderful attainments at the age of ninety-two, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe adds that of playing the piano accompaniment to singing of her own songs. Before going to Newport for her ninety-second Summer at that watering place, the venerable gentlewoman visited the Perkins Institution for the Blind at South Boston, where she and the late Dr. Howe once lived. She gave a twenty-minute talk of her forgney life there to the blind pupils. Then she said: "I would like to hear you sing the 'Hunting Song.'" This song was composed and written by Mrs. Howe. "I will play the accompaniment myself," she said. Fingering the keys with delicate touch, Mrs. Howe played her own music while fifty of the blind pupils sang.

MISSING BOY FOUND IN TENT

UPTON, June 18.—Arnold Kroepsch, fourteen years old, who ran away from his home, No. 66 Cambridge street, Cambridge, on Tuesday, was to-day found at the home of his uncle, W. W. True, in this town. He has been there since Wednesday, camping in the back yard in a tent he brought with him.

Mr. True notified his parents, and he will probably be taken home soon.

After the boy left home his mother found a note in which he said: "I stayed out of school because I was not feeling well and as you said you would whip me I did not like to tell you. I am ashamed of myself lately and I have decided to leave home. I have my Bible with me and I will read it every night. I won't come back till I have learned my lesson. God bless you and pape."

COUNTRY'S HONOR WON BY THE FEW

Bunker Hill would not have been a defeat, however glorious, but one of the most spectacular victories the world has ever known, if it had not been for the shame that must ever remain that at such a crisis the mass of American soldiers and citizens alike, were content with looking on.

But not in battle alone have we won honor for America, though the few that endured and suffered. Not in battle only has our country suffered shame because in the face of national peril the many have not acted, but looked on. There have always been a few to fight the assaults upon our Government by the Tammanys, Republicans or Democratic—Ex-Gov. Guild to Bunker Hill Monument Association.

BROCKTON, June 18.—Mrs. Ann Tobey and ten other women who participated in the lawn party last Wednesday at the Brockton Hospital grounds are suffering from peculiar marks on their faces and bodies which they allege they contracted at the picnic by coming in contact with gypsy moths. Physicians testify to this assertion.

An Ideal Hair Preparation

Woods Hutchinson, M. D., a writer of authority, says: "The main hope of stopping the advance of baldness lies in the direction of improving the general health, while at the same time keeping the scalp and the hair in a clean, antiseptic, well ventilated condition. Avoid using strong soaps, strong alkalis, such as ammonia and soda, and too hot water." An ideal preparation for washing the hair and scalp is Birt's Head Wash, because it contains no excess alkali or ammonia. It is made of Refined Soap, Cocoanut Oil, Glycerine, White of Eggs and Salicylic Acid. These are the best things known for hair that falls out, Itching Scalp and Dandruff. Tubes 25c, jars 50c. POLICE TAKE 131 IN CHARLESTOWN

The police of the Charlestown station were kept on the jump throughout the Bunker Hill celebration, 131 arrests being recorded on the books. Several of the prisoners were women. The majority of the arrests were for drunkenness, while the rest were either for violations of city ordinances or street fights. The police swept the entire district in two squads, and when the roundup had been completed the prisoners were crowded into the seventeen cells of the station house, which under ordinary circumstances are only supposed to accommodate thirty-four offenders.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

COPPER SHARES ARE FIRM HERE

STATE STREET—After a very dull opening in which Lake was the only issue to show any activity, the local market developed a firm tone, especially so in the copper shares. The strength of G. M. B. copper in London has had a very favorable influence on sentiment and the buying this morning of the low cost issues was of a very good character. London advices say that quite a vigorous movement has started in copper shares, based on an improved position of the metal.

The buying of Lake was by Fitzgerald, Hubbard & Co. Mr. Fitzgerald leaves this afternoon for Houghton to attend the annual meeting, at which he will vote 54,000 shares of stock.

ROLL OF $890 LOST ON CAR

As he stepped aboard a surface car to-day at Washington and Dover streets, Charles A. Eaton, automobile dealer, living at No. 64 Pembroke street, South End, missed a roll containing just $890. Mr. Eaton reported to the police that he thought his pocket had been picked by three young men, who had crowded him into the car immediately ahead of him. STOCKS HALTED BY ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, June 18.—The arrival of President Roosevelt directed attention from trading in the stock market at the opening to-day, and as a result it required but three yards of ticker tape to record all the transactions of the first hour of business. Nearly all of these transactions consisted of formal quotations of inactive bonds. Only one transaction of as much as 1,000 shares was recorded. Nearly everything else was in 100 share lots or less. It was the dullest half hour Wall street had seen for many years. Prices were not materially changed, but what little changes there were were advances.

London was higher in the American department and a cheerful tone prevailed everywhere. The crop outlook is good. The arrival of J. Pierpont Morgan next week is expected to furnish the incentive for renewed activity in the market. All the commission houses, professional traders and most of the big operators are looking for improvement. Several of the Standard Oil operators believe the market will go lower. Movements of money for the week indicate a good bank statement.

The indictment of cotton operators had no effect on prices in cotton at the opening figures showing gains of from 2 to 7 points in options.

MOTH WAR ON THE COMMON

Squads of men are to-day distributed about Boston Common annihilating tent moth nests which for the past year have been slowly encompassing the destruction of many of the beautiful shade trees. The damage done by the moth has become so alarming that the authorities have been driven to drastic measures to save all the trees from ruin. The brown or caterpillar of the leopard moth, in its early stages, is the worst offender.

The men are cutting off the dead branches and limbs of affected trees and burning them. They are also pushing wires into the holes in the trees where the borers and moths are concealed, killing the pests and destroying the eggs. The holes are then filled with poison and sealed. The work is being conducted under the direction of an entomologist from the University of Ohio.

TO-DAY'S

CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Kaiser's Condition Alarming Berlin.

BERLIN—Belief is growing that the favorable official reports put out as to the condition of Emperor William are designed to conceal a really serious condition of his health and the fear is beginning to obtain that the present trouble with the knee as well as the recent ailment that prevented the use of his right hand are more than local disorders. The papers say the Kaiser is suffering from gout. Professor Bier, one of the leading German specialists, was called in consultation to-day by the physicians who have been attending the Emperor.

$44,906 for Picture.

LONDON—At Christie's there was a sale of Sir F. Thorpe Muppin's collection of English pictures. Stolsby Neyland, Suffolk, by Constable, brought a record price of $44,906. The price was all the more remarkable, as the picture, with all its movement and glitter, was scarcely more than a brilliant sketch on a large scale. "A Gypsy Encampment," by Gainsborough, sold for $5,355.

Didn't Play, Pays $2,000.

PARIS—The Court has overruled the plea of Mme. Lanteime in the suit for damages by the Athenee Theatre because of her refusal to play "Manon" in Henri Batuille's comedy on the ground that the part was indecent and unfit for an honest artist to play. The Court ordered Mme. Lanteime to pay the directors of the Athenee $2,000 damages for non-fulfilment of her contract.

Accuses Sister Candide.

PARIS—Trouble continues to pile up for "Sister" Candide, who is in jail for frauds in connection with her alleged charitable work. Another complaint was lodged against her, the victim this time being the famous dealer in precious stones Christian Cressat, who alleges that he sold her $100,000 worth of diamonds and pearls for which he could not get her to settle.

Cabby After "Big Tim."

LONDON—Somehow "Big Tim" Sullivan gave a cabby half a crown after riding an hour and a half. "Another arf-crown, sir," demanded the cabby. "Ah, get out!" retorted "Big Tim," as he turned away. "Ladies and gents," cried the cabby, addressing the fashionable company taking tea in the open-air cafe, "t'ike a good look at 'im, for I be ashymed to tell you where 'e's been."

New Attack on Oil Trust.

VIENNA—Austria is adopting strong measures to induce the Standard Oil Company to sell its petroleum refineries. Through its subsidiary, the Vacuum Oil Company, the Standard has been making serious inroads on home companies. The government has notified the company that it intends to restrict the Standard's unfruitful and unsupported activities.

SINKS TO DEATH IN QUICKSAND

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 18.—Far from help and with only a small companion to witness his agony, eight-year-old George Bergman, son of Isadore Bergman, met death in a horrible form, when he was slowly swallowed up by quicksand on the banks of the Winooski River.

With Julius Wool, a child of his own age, he had gone to the river to swim when the accident happened.

The Wool boy ran as fast as he could for help, but the body of Bergman was not recovered for three hours later, when Joseph Rogove succeeded in digging it out.

SAFE BLOWERS IN AUTO MAKE HAUL OF $500

LOWELL, June 18.—Four safe blowers, riding in a high-power automobile, broke into the offices of the Abbott Woolen Mills in Graniteville and Forge Village and blew up the safes for $500.

After the robbery in Graniteville they drove up to the house of Victor Pigeon, who lives nearby, and aroused him by pounding on the door. When Pigeon went to the door the four men, all wearing silk masks, confronted him. "We want something to eat and we want it quick," said the leader. Pigeon hastily set forth all the food he had in the house and the men bolted in.

They drove away and Pigeon went back to bed. While such an occurrence is not the usual thing in Graniteville, Pigeon thought it worth losing an hour's sleep over and did not give the alarm.

It is believed that after leaving Graniteville the men went to Forge Village, about a mile and half from Graniteville. At the Abbott offices in Forge Village they pried open a window and blew out the door of the safe. The tracks of the automobile were plainly seen about the doors of both places. The men worked quickly and showed skill in their manner of breaking into both safes.

About a year ago burglars broke into the bank at Pepperell, about five miles from Lowell, and escaped in an automobile with about $6,000. The men who operated last night are supposed to have been the same automobile gang which worked at Pepperell.

81 BARE ARMS IN SERUM TEST AT FORT BANKS

When eighty-one soldiers at Fort Banks, Winthrop, woke up to-day, they looked themselves over for typhoid symptoms which might have developed during sleep, for each had submitted to inoculation with an anti-typhoid fever serum at the hands of the military surgeons. "Hey, look out for my arm!" is the slogan of the army post.

The men stepped forth when the request came for those willing to undergo treatment in the fight that the Government is making against the disease, were marched to the hospital, bared their arms and half a cubic centimeter of serum was injected with an ordinary hypodermic needle. Two more injections are yet to be undergone by each man.

Typhoid fever has been a scourge to the American army in nearly every campaign since the Revolution, until the climax was reached in the Spanish-American war, when among 120,000 men there were 20,750 cases and 1,580 deaths.

The work at Fort Banks is under the direction of Major Robert U. Patterson. He says, "Although I have had typhoid fever and consider myself immune, I have tried the treatment. It is hoped in time to reach the public and eradicate the disease from the country.

Dr. William T. Councilman, professor of pathology at Harvard, was one of the members of the Army Medical Reserve Corps on the inaction list, whose findings upheld the view that the practice of anti-typhoid vaccination was useful and harmless and that it offered practical means of diminishing the amount of typhoid fever in the army.

As a rule there is a red and tender spot about the size of the palm of the hand at the point of inoculation. This disappears in forty-eight to seventy-two hours.

Occasionally the swollen area may be unusually large and extend from the point of inoculation to the elbow or even half way to the wrist. The excessively severe local reactions are not particularly painful, and the men are able to use the arms for light work without discomfort.

BALDWIN HAS CLOSE CALL IN AERO SPILL

MINEOLA, L. I., June 18.—Captain Thomas F. Baldwin had a bad spill from his aeroplane during a flight here, when the machine dashed against a tree, ripping the planes to ribbons and hurling the aviator from his seat to the ground. He narrowly escaped being crushed beneath the heavy motor, which was dashed to earth with the wrecked machine. The craft was damaged beyond repair, but Baldwin was merely bruised.

VISITOR BEATEN AT SOUTH STATION

Rodeis B. Shaw, a guest at the Hotel Reniard, was badly beaten by an unknown man in front of the South Station early to-day and is at the Relief Hospital suffering from injuries to his face and neck. Shaw was coming the entrance to the station when he was accosted by his assailant. He resented the fellow's actions and turned to walk away when the stranger suddenly dealt him a crushing blow on the jaw. In the fight which followed Shaw got a terrible beating. When a policeman appeared the stranger fled, leaving Shaw lying on the sidewalk.

Good Things to Eat

California fruits are rapidly making their way into the market in great quantities and increasing varieties. Peaches, plums, apricots and cherries now adorn the fruit stands, and the representatives of the California fruit growers say that peace will be signed shortly.

Butter has taken a drop at last, although the drop was not very great, nor is there any prospect the price will fall much further. Fancy Northern creamery butter sells for 35 to 38 cents in the retail markets, which is about six cents above the normal price for this season of the year. Western cuttes of good quality is nearly as high in price as Northern. In the New York market butter is about three cents cheaper than it is here.

Dealers complain because the strawberries which have been coming into the market of late have been very soft. The shippers say this is due to the wet weather which has prevailed in the strawberry growing districts for several weeks. The rain has also had the effect of making the berries insipid. The price has advanced during the past week and has fluctuated from day to day. Yesterday good berries, or as good as could be had, were worth 20 cents a box.

New potatoes are more plentiful and are selling for 40 cents a peck.

HIBBARD'S FRIEND REBUKES DRAPER

It became known to-day that Sherwin L. Cook, campaign manager for the late Mayor Hibbard, was the person referred to by Governor Draper, in his letter to Mayor Fitzgerald, as being the second of the two citizens of Boston, who has presented petitions to the Governor asking for the removal of the Civil Service Commissioners. This came out when Mr. Cook replied by letter to the Governor, concerning some of the latter's statements. He denies that he was ever a supporter of Mayor Fitzgerald, asserting also that the newspapers had no knowledge of the filing of his petition. He declines to withdraw his charges which concern the rejection of the late Mayor's appointment as city collector, and asks for a hearing.

TWO SOLDIERS ARE CRUCIFIED IN NICARAGUA

NEW ORLEANS, June 18.—Crucified with two heavy daggers driven through their arms and legs, two of the soldiers of the Estrada army who had been taken prisoners by the soldiers of the Madriz faction, were found five days after the battle of Bluefields by General Estrada and Richard Sussman, Consul-General of the provisionals, with headquarters here.

The revolutionist leader was led to the spot by the circling of buzzards around two trees, and when he went closer made the gruesome discovery.

Above the heads of the soldiers was the sign in roughly scrawled letters: "Asi muere Estrada" ("Thus will we kill Estrada").

This and many other tales of barbarities by the Madriz troops and their generals were told by Consul-General Sussman on his return here to-day via the steamship Dictator.

Mr. Sussman said that on the day of finding of these bodies, one of which had been tied up before crucifixion, General Estrada and himself had gone out to relieve the necessities of wounded troops of the enemy. They found seventeen huddled together under a tree, over which was a sign asking that the provisions be shown mercy and give them treatment. The men were lying in a swampy place on a large piece of corrugated iron. They were helpless and were swarming with ants and other vermin. Gangrene had set in their wounds and one poor fellow was found whose jaw had been shot through.

General Estrada dismounted from his horse and personally superintended the feeding and tending of the men, tearing up canvas bags to make improvised stretchers—and himself spreading bread with butter and potted ham. He and his companions gave their horses to those soldiers who could sit on them and trudged six miles through undergrowth and swamp lands to Bluefields.

Sussman also says that a Madriz party of fifty fired upon a provisional colonel when he went out under a flag of truce to see if the force meant to negotiate for a surrender.

New Cure for Warts and Corns.

A new cure for warts, corns and callosities is described in the Muncheuer Medizinische Wochenschrift. A mention of it is made in the American Journal of Surgery, which says: "The advantage of carbon-dioxide snow lies in the fact that warts, corns and callosities may be removed without operation, prolonged treatment or much pain, and that no scar results. The application, which may be made with some pressure, is continued from twenty to fifty seconds less in youthful, more in aged individuals."

WOMEN CALL FAIR OFF, YET MAKE GOOD

The "county fair" in aid of the Choate Memorial Hospital at Woburn was at least half held. Woburn women couldn't be stumped by J. Flurius, so when Forest Park looked to be a runaway river, and men knew the outing called off, the women got busy. Four hundred luncnes that would have gone to waste were sold from house to house.

The master minds then conceived the idea of having the show put on at Lyceum Hall. This proved the right thing, for one hundred lunches remaining were snapped up by the patrons, and the women realized a fine sum for the institution.

MILITIA READY TO STOP SAM LANGFORD BOUT

By C. E. VAN LOAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—What's the price of a round trip to Reno? This is the one best bet which centers after a day of wild excitement and sudden switch, involving all the kings and pawns on the board.

In the morning Governor Gillett announces that he would call out the militia to prevent the Kaufman-Langford battle. At noon District Attorney Fickert of San Francisco county, announces that he would not interfere with the proposed test mode.

Tex Rickard, who last night announced that he was through with California and would proceed at once to Nevada, decided to wait for the decision of the Superior Court Judge before whom Attorney-General Webb was to ask an injunction.

Attorney-General Webb went before Judge Van Nostrand and applied for an injunction restraining Louis Blot, the promoter, and Kaufman and Langford, the principals in to-night's affair from breaking the law of the State. The judge promptly refused to grant the injunction and for half and hour the town was jubilant.

Stop Langford Bout.

Then the blow fell. Governor Gillet, Attorney-General Webb, Adjutant-General Lauck, commander of the State troops, Chief of Police of San Francisco John L. Martin, and District Attorney C. M. Fickert met in consultation, and when the doors were opened the word was given out that Chief Martin had promised to stop the Kaufman-Langford fight rather than have the State troops called into the city. Governor Gillett threw his big argument could shake him. The fact that Judge Van Nostrand had refused to grant the injunction made no difference to him.

"This fight will be stopped," said he, "and there will never be another one while I am Governor of this State."

The discussion was not a long one. Martin, seeing that the Governor was determined to send troops into the arena to prevent the fight, submitted to the inevitable.

"Rather than have San Francisco openly disgraced by the appearance of State troops to enforce the peace, I myself will stop this fight myself," said the chief.

In spite of the fact that Chief Martin has promised to obey the Governor's orders it is known that four troops of militia will be held in readiness for duty awaiting orders from Adjutant-general Lauck.

This was the last straw, and those who have been holding out to the end that something might be done to the the Governor and the Kaufman-Langford firm, the chief of police had fallen into line. The move will be made by Fickert and Goldfield Bids For Bout.

Goldfield, the town which placed Rickard on the map, and where he promoted the Gans-Nelson battle for the lightweight championship has wired Rickard a guarantee of $120,000—that is to say Goldfield guarantees Rickard there will be that much money in the box office when Jeffand Johnson strip for action. The rumor at once spread through the city and flew over the wires to the East that Rickard had accepted the Goldfield offer.

The citizens of Reno had already offered a free license and a free arena, and when they received the false report about Goldfield several warm telegrams were sent to Rickard. The Reno men attacked at once, to the conclusion that they were being pushed into a bidding contest against the Southern Nevada town, announced themselves in no uncertain terms.

"We will go no further," was the gist of their messages. Then Rickard sent the following telegrams which explained themselves.

A. J. Aylesworth, Reno, Nev.—The rumor that I am playing Reno against Goldfield is false. I will take nothing more from Reno than has already been offered. My choice, should the fight go to Nevada, must depend upon my judgment as to which will draw the largest gate receipts. Will know definitely if the fight can take place in California on Saturday night. In case it cannot, I will be then ready to meet committee from Goldfield and Reno same time on Sunday. I absolutely will not demand or accept a larger bid from either town than has already been offered.

(Signed) TEX RICKARD.

Not a Bidding Contest.

The other telegram was sent to the Goldfield delegation, and was similar in tone, save that it denied that Rickard had already decided in favor of the other camp.

"I am not in the hold-up business" said Rickard, shocking more heat than he has displayed at any time during the whole forty-eight forty-story hours.

"I don't want my friends in Nevada to get the idea that I am trying to force them into a bidding contest. Reno offers me a free license and a free arena. Goldfield guarantees that the fight will draw $120,000 and I will build my own arena and buy my own license. There are many things to be considered.

"Reno is easy to reach from San Francisco and it is on the main line from the East. Should the fight go to Nevada trains could leave here one day and make the run in ten hours and return here on the next afternoon and night without the loss of a business day. A cheap return trip ticket from Reno has already been arranged for. It will cost no more to go there than it will to buy two of the cheapest admission tickets.

"Goldfield is not nearly so accessible and the accommodations could not be nearly so good. You can say this for me, and make it as strong as you know how, there will be a fight on the Fourth of July and it will take place at the town where I think I can draw the most money at the gate."

While Tex in no way tipped off his opinion as to the best place to hold the fight it is still plain that he is willing to gamble on the gate receipts. He must draw nearly $160,000 to get an even break on the purse and the side expenses and the Goldfield offer would still leave that $40,000 in the hole.

"In case we go to Nevada," said Rickard, "it won't take me long to decide. Half an hour after I meet committees in Reno I will be ready to decide the site of the battle and in another hour the preparations will be under way. There will be no jacking and dilly-dallying.

"I asked Jim about Ely. 'I am afraid we will have to eliminate Ely from the proposition,' said Rickard. 'It's too hard to get there and get back.'

The Nevada man has taken all his hard luck without whining and his conduct during the past few days has won for him a host of friends.

"I took prompt action," said the Governor, "after I learned that the District Attorney of San Francisco had refused to do his duty. I notice that District Attorney Fickert in his reported interviews complains about the stopping of the fight at this late hour, and others, too, are making this criticism. In reply to all these complaints I wish to say that the press of the country has failed to report me correctly.

Out in Detroit the Red Sox again tackle the Tigers. Willett's wild pitch gave the Speed Boys the game yesterday, and as a result the Tigers are taking no chances to-day. Needless to say, Donovan's men are out to repeat.

Tris Speaker is going to submit to an operation as soon as the swelling in his throat eases up. He reported to bed all day in spite of the boiling hot weather.

When able he will have his tonsils removed to prevent a repetition of tonsilitis. He will be out of the game for a week and will return to Boston with the club after to-morrow's game.

LOCAL NAGS GO TO SPRINGFIELD

The Dorchester City Driving Club will send twenty horses to Springfield a week from to-day to battle with the Hampden Driving Club of that city. The Hampden Driving Club was to have engaged in an inter-city meet on the above date with the Worcester Driving, but it is said that the Worcester sports, after sizing up the Springfield horses, decided that they had no chance to make a respectable showing. It is also probable that the annual intercity meets between Springfield and Worcester Clubs are all off for the season at least.

When the Springfield Club was notified that the Worcester Club had a case of cold feet a proposition was made to the Dorchester Club to take the place of the Worcester organization.

This was accepted and Dorchester boys will be able to send a formidable list of horses, as they will practically have the pick of the best horses in their own and the Metropolitan Club.

It is expected that each club will start two horses in each event, which will make a program of ten races with four horses in each. The Dorchester Club will send a big delegation of members along with the horses. While they are confident that they can take the larger share of the purses, they do not underestimate the Hampden Club horses.

It is probable that later in the season the Springfield horsemen will come to Boston to take part in a return match with Dorchester.

SWEETZER BEATEN BY S. L. BEALS

With ideal conditions for play the four semi-finalists in the State tennis championship in singles started this afternoon before a large and enthusiastic gallery. "Nat" Niles, the former Harvard captain and holder of many championship titles, was pitted against S. L. Beals, who reached the semi-final round this morning by defeating Arthur Sweetzer, the present Harvard tennis captain, and a well-known player.

This latter match was somewhat of a surprise, as Sweetzer has been in championship form throughout the whole tournament, defeating such players as Soliomey, Wheelwright and Foster, but his game this morning, although brilliant at times, was not up to his best style. Beals defeated him by the score of 2—6, 6—3, 6—4.

Among the other Niles-Beals match this afternoon came Harry C. Johnson vs. H. Nickerson, the Harvard player. Johnson is well up in his game this season and has worked through this tourney, defeating Bishop and Putnam and other fine players.

Those who have watched the play and players point out Johnson and Niles as the finalists and Niles as the logical winner. With this the case Beaver will have an opponent who is more than liable to capture the title which Beaver has held for five consecutive years.

M'GRAW GETS TWO PROSPECTIVE GIANTS

NEW YORK, June 18.—Although it is rather early in the season for the purchase of young players, Manager McGraw of the Giants has already closed options on First Baseman Harry Gowdy and Pitcher Walter Shones of the Dallas team. WESTERN WRESTLER BEATS BOSTON MAN

MANCHESTER, N. H., June 18.—Jack Peters of St. Paul defeated Harry Litowsky of Boston at Greco-Roman wrestling at the Queen City A. C. in a hard fought bout. Peters won the first fall in forty-five minutes with a hammer lock and the second in forty minutes with a body hold. Cyclone Burns won in two straight falls over Joe Feigar of Buffalo.

TAD SAYS GILLETT IS BRAND NEW FINNEGAN

By TAD.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—You know Finnegan? On again, off again, gone again, Finnegan? Sure you remember him. Finney wasn't there any time with a regular job. Well, folks as Finnegan was, he was a wooden Indian compared with the California politicians. On the level, they don't know whether they're going or coming.

One minute the militia is ordered out, the next minute the fight is on. At 5 last night the Governor ordered both Gleason and Rickard shot at sunrise and like the German, who had just such a sentence imposed upon him, leaned back and asked for another cup of coffee. This time they kicked the bucket, too, and we're ready for anything.

Right now no one in Frisco knows whether they're going to fight here or not. I just left Tex Rickard at the St. Francis and Tex is as far up in the air as Farmer ever blew.

"I'm going to Reno," said Tex, "but I couldn't say just when the fight will take place. I'm to meet a party of Goldfield sports and if they make their Reno gives, why, I'll go through. Of course, I know that Reno offers the best place. You know that they have the accommodations and the railroad line, but it is a matter of money with me. The best I can get from a town gets it, and I'll make out with that if I can.

"Funny actions of Governor Gillett. I can get fair used to make affidavit to the effect that the Governor declared himself in favor of this fight. Not exactly in favor, you know, just he said that there was no way to stop it. I don't understand what's back of this butt in. We'll hear of it, sooner or later.

"It's a tough blow to me. We have over $133,000 in the Metropolis bank now on the ticket sale. But $30,000 of that is from Reno, though. We haven't sold higher than a $10 seat for this city, but expect a lot. Why, to-day alone we sold $29,000 worth of tickets."

Mr. John D. Gleason, as usual, was as happy as a lark. "Everything is beautiful," said Mr. Gleason. "We are not worrying in the least. I still have my mind left. Although I may blow a million on the deal, I'm in the game and in it to win.

"Just left Tim McGrath at the Continental, and you know, I'm sold on that stuff that's bright and cheerful?" I asked.

"Not a pipe from her agent," I was up to see the governor this afternoon."

"Jim, what about that big quarrel? Is it a go, or not?" He says to say he says, "Tim

Just then the telephone bell rang and Mr. McGrath disappeared.

Matt Larkin, who was at Reno when Hart and Root fought, says that the big fellows will find a different climate than that of Frisco.

"Why, it was so hot on the day those fellows boxed," said Matt, "that they had to wait until 4 o'clock in the afternoon before they could start in. It was so stagnant about 2 but tres. wait, it was hot. Why, it was over 100 and something in the shade that day.

"You know its a town and some odd feet above the sea level there, and I'll bet the drinking at Rowdy Dow where its only 400 feet above sea level and Johnson has been right on the ocean. You know that's going to mean a lot of ice that high up in the air stuff."

Tex Corbett hit town to-day. "There's going to be a big difference in the atmosphere between Reno and Frisco," said he. "When I fought Fitzsimons at Carson and got that lump in the stomach I was through. The light air had me out completely. If that had been any other place in the country I would have weathered the storm and came out a winner, but I'll tell you when you are fighting 4,000 feet up in the air you feel it."

The militia would have had a merry time in with the Frisco sports. It seems that soldier boys were not very popular in this section at this time of the fight and the Frisco birds still have it in for them.

Jack McKeon, who is in the Rickard-Gleason office at No. 80 Post street, still feels that the big show will be held in Frisco.

"We are selling tickets every day," said Jack, "and it was not any deader to-day than any other. Of course, we only sell a receipt to a man which is redeemable at the Metropolis bank if the fight does not come off. No seats are sold, mind you, but on every receipt is the number and location of the tickets. It is a safe proposition and no one need be afraid."

ALL CREWS IN TIME TRIALS OVER COURSE

NEW LONDON, June 18.—It is planned by the Yale and Harvard rowing coaches to finish the week tonight with another attack on the courses by all the crews.

Both Varsity eights are now scared for the first time this season in the permanent order they will row. Barring accidents got another change will be made.

The return of Eliot Bacon, No. 5, to the Harvard eight makes the crimson roster complete, while the resumption of rowing of rowing by Tucker, No. 2, at Yale again completes the Eli octet. Tucker has been ill most of this week with indigestion and Bacon has been out of the shell with a cold in the ear.

Captain Walker of the Yale Freshman eight joined the crew to-day at No. 6. Neither eight has had a chance to show its best form as the test with Tucker and Bacon in their seats is expected to prove one of the most interesting features of the training season here.

The absence of time rowing continues marked. Eminence rows there are a plenty but of practical time work there has been none.

Both training camps are filling up with Alumni advisers. Jim Lawrence, George Mumford, E. G. Storrow, formerly head coach and Robert S. Herrick, present Chairman of the Rowing Committee and Ex-Captain Elliot Cutler have reached Harvard and Julian Curtiss, Yale's rowing adviser has returned to Yale after a week's absence.

HARVARD TO CHOOSE RACING SHELL FOR THE YALE REGATTA

HARVARD TRAINING QUARTERS, Red Top, Ct., June 18.—Harvard's rowing committee may to-day select the shell to be used by the varsity eight in the regatta here. The choice lies between the boat built by Davy of Cambridge and the shell imported from England.

The morning the varsity eight went out first in the Davy boat, returned and went out in the English shell. Each shell has particular merits, and it is uncertain which will be the race day choice.

While has supplied Forster as stroke of the four-oar, as was expected. He has put additional life into the boat and has made the men row in better time around smoothly on the catch. His rhythm is superior to either Foster's or Sargeant's.

The good effects of a permanent order of the new combination is seen. The freshman four-oar, which has improved markedly in the last few days. The men maintain an even swing and complete the various parts of the stroke in unison. Davis is a fine stroke and possesses a good sense of rhythm.

HARVARD NINE IS OFF TODAY FOR YALE GAME

Harvard's baseball squad, comprising fifteen players, three managers and the trainers, leave Boston today for New Haven, where the Crimson nine tackles Yale Tuesday.

Not all the men are able to leave this morning when the first players must because some of the final examinations at the college are not yet over. The first squad leaves at 10 o'clock and the remainder leave on the 5 o'clock train this afternoon.

The cancelling of the Brown game yesterday on account of rain was a great disappointment to the supporters of the Crimson team, because it was expected that the home team could show its superiority over the Brunonians.

The Harvard players will stay at Morris Cove, a suburb of New Haven, while on the trip.

McLaughlin will be in the box for the first game and Young will be on the receiving end of the Crimson battery. Hicks will be at first and Potter at second. Marshall and Captain Lanigan will again fill the other two infield positions.

The outfield will be Babson, Rogers and Fincke.

Yale has never before been obliged to play the two games of the Harvard series on days apart, but when they are advised to a game with Cornell and one with Princeton, but at the prospect for the first the team will not prove equal to the test and that the Harvard as well as the Princeton series will be lost.

YALE NINE FEARS HARVARD WILL WIN NEW HAVEN BATTLE

NEW HAVEN, Ct., June 18.—The Yale baseball nine came home from New York all depressed not only at losing the series with Princeton, but at the prospect for the coming week, which ends teh Yale season. Yale meets Cornell here to-day and to-morrow and Tuesday and goes to Cambridge Thursday to meet the Crimson there.

Yale has never before been obliged to play the two games of the Harvard series on days apart, but when they are advised to a game with Cornell and one with Princeton, but at the prospect for the first the team will not prove equal to the test and that the Harvard as well as the Princeton series will be lost.

ALGIE FIRST IN GRAND ANNUAL

By JOHN H. JEWETT.

The big event of the second and closing day of the Brookline Country Club meet was the Grand Annual Steeplechase. The wise people were all at sea in this event. Before the start, first, Algie and then Sir Wooster ruled as the favorite. This was pretty nearly right at that, as the two cracks finished first and second, in the order named, after a stubborn fight in the last going after they had successfully negotiated the many and difficult jumps.

The race was enlivened by the dash that was made by that old timber-topper Grandpa, who by the way was running in honors of Allan Pickering.

The "venerable One" took the lead at the start and showed the way over three quarters of the course, with Sir Wooster his close contender, in the early stages of the race.

Jackson, who was up on Algie, was content to keep his mount a close third until the horses took the stiff hill back of the stand, the second time around. Here he forged to the front, and though Sir Wooster gave him a stiff argument in the stretch he won the race by a length, with a bit in reserve.

The Hunt Club cup was won easily by that good gelding Sportsman, but the contest was marred from the fact that Selectus, who was a big favorite, unseated his driver and ran away, the others being set back by the accident. Harry Smith's gelding, Sir Ritchie fell in taking the hill jump and failed to finish.

George G. Hall showed that his victory on the first day of the meeting was no scratch, by outracing and outstaying Mr. Randolph's Robert G., who was an almost even money favorite before the start. Robert G. went to the front at the start, and took the real thing in the first stages of the game, but when Taylor, who rode George G. Hall, made his move it was apparent that Robert G. was out to the last notch. The chestnut gelding went by the white faced fellow like a streak of greased lightning, and won as he pleased, with Renault second, Kanegsia third, and Robert G. back in the rack.

SANDY FERGUSON LICKS JIM BARRY

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—Sandy Ferguson of Boston won the decision over Jim Barry of Chicago at the end of ten rounds before the Pacific A. C. There were knockouts in the preliminary bouts. The police were at the ring side, but there was no interference.

STRAIGHT TIPS
FOR SPORT FANS

THERE WILL BE A BIG GATHERING of the members at the Riverside Boat Club on Sunday afternoon, as Jack Twin Sullivan intends to hold a reception and show his boxing form on the eve of the important battle with Bill Papke at the Armory next week. Jack is going to give a heavyweight by the name of McGuire from Harvard a tryout as a little side bout to the entertainment.

WHEN IT COMES TO A CLEANUP boxer there are few in the class with Matty Baldwin. He licked three of the best lightweights from the Coast in Frankie Smith, Leonard Lauder and Frankie Burns in the past year.

THE LITTLE CHARLESTOWN SLUGger is quite a different fighter now and has picked up a few points. He learned a trick from Abe Attell of blocking that left jab that used to be the hardest punch for him to block, and he also has a new defence for an uppercut.

THE ONLY WAY TO HAVE A SATISfactory settlement between Jig Stone and Dutch Carr, the rival mitt artists from the Bunker Hill district, is to throw them into a locked room and the one who is still alive when the door is opened announced the winner. They can't live up to the Queensberry rules when in the ring.

Straight Tips—A bets that the player reaches second. B bets (six to one). Player runs from first on ball hit to shortstop. Shortstop throws ball to second, and second baseman received ball just before runner reached second base. Second baseman threw over second base, second baseman dropped ball and tags runner out before he gets back to second. Does runner count as reaching second or not?

Months.

Yes; runner reached second base on error and was put out when off the bag, according to your description of the play.

Straight Tips—Did Sullivan ever box Mitchell in the Madison Square Garden, New York?

Winter.

They met at Madison Square in 1883. The fight was stopped by the police in the third round. Mitchell scored a knockdown in the first round.

THAT WONDER AT MAKING A BIcycle fly, Frank Kramer of New York, the American champion sprinter, is the star in the Grand Circuit races at the Revere Oval to-night. Several of the pro riders are after Kramer's laurels and he has had some hard tasks to test them at the different circuit meets.

SOME OF THOSE SUBURBAN BOXERS are broadening out in their field of endeavor. There's Maurice LaMarpe, the Webster welterweight, who is matched to box the Dixie Kid at the Olympic A. A. a ten round bout on Monday night.

Straight Tips—To settle a bet will you please state in your column, the number of times James Jeffries appeared in the ring in the spring of 1900, also in which Theatres, and with what actors?

TOM KEEL.

Jeffries appeared at the American Theatre a few years ago. Later he boxed at the Armory A. A.

Straight Tips—I would greatly appreciate your answer to the following question: Where in Boston could I find a Masonic Temple?

S. O. W.

Everett.

That's a little out of my line. Perhaps some of those raw novices who perform up at the Armory A. A. sometimes could tell you. They seem to show some activity that would qualify them for contortion work.

STAR SPRINTERS RACE TONIGHT

The stars of the bike sprint game in Grand Circuit chasers, will be seen at the Revere bicycle track tonight in championship events. The appearance of such stars as Frank Kramer, the champion five, Eddie Root, Joe Fogler, Goulette the Australian and the three cornered fellow automotor paced race with George Wiley of Syracuse, Elmer Collins of Lynn and Peter Drobach in the saddle will furnish a deserved of racing. The amateurs also will disport themselves in a mile handicap and three mile open.

The professional sprinters will race for heats and each prize in a quarter mile dash, scratch and two mile handicap when Kramer on the low mark in the latter event. Several of the riders are out after Kramer's scalp and will make a fight to beat him.

Collins, the Lynn boy is going fine behind the motors. He beat Wiley by forty yards in a twenty mile race the other night, at Newark, the first time this year he has done the trick. Peter Drobach recently beat Bedell and Halstead, which shows he is riding fast.

RACING CARD FOR SUNNYSIDE PARK

There will be plenty of sport for horse lovers at Sunnyside Park, Natick, on July 4, the management having decided on giving a four-for-all and 2.24 classes, with purses of $100 and $150, respectively. Then there will be several running races and athletic events.

COLTS GO FAST AT READVILLE

Bob Proctor has been in 2:20 with two of the three-year-olds in his Readville stable. W. C. Brown's big bay colt, by Bingara, is one of them and the other is the California colt Iron Vivant, by Bon Voyage, 2:12¾. Another three-year-old in the stable that the critics think about as good as either of the others is a black colt by Bingen, 2:06¾, out of the M. & M. winner Electa, 2:08¾. He is said to be a little faster than 2:27, but he is one of the best gaited trotters on the track.

Proctor has not been better than 2:20 with his M. & M. candidate Alibi, but says that she will be ready when the bell rings for the Detroit classic.

He expects to ship his horses to Grand Rapids and may decide to start Alibi and some of the other horses in his stable at the meeting there July 18-22.

John Young, the Allen Farm reinsman, is certainly not a dry weather reinsman, as during the week he has driven three winners, devoted to saying things about the weather, to set everybody at the Readville track talking about the young Bingara in his string.

He has stopped quarters in 34 seconds with no less than five of the two-year-olds that he is working.

Belgravia, by Bingara, dam Persia, by Metachio, trotted a mile in 2:20¾, with the last half in 1:11¾; Box, by Bingara, by Expedition, made the distance in 2:22, last half in 1:11; Krell, by Kavalli, 2:07¾, dam Elsbon, 2:17, by Arion, 2:07¾, has been a mile in 2:30, last half in 1:12, final quarter in 34 seconds; Calavia, by Kavalli, dam by Bingara, reported in 2:28, with the final quarter in 35 seconds; and Brienne, by Bingara, dam a full sister to the dam of Rhysole, 2:08½, has been a mile in 2:34, with the final quarter in 33½ seconds.

For the work they have had it is doubtful if any other farm in the country can now such a speedy and good looking lot of two-year-olds as are those of Allen Farm.

FRYE IS CHOSEN TO LEAD EXETER NINE

EXETER, N. H., June 18.—Russell Brigham Frye, 1911, of Marlboro, Mass., was elected captain of the Phillips Exeter baseball nine for 1911 to succeed Dana J. Pennington of Winchester, Mass.

Frye has been one of the best hitters on the team the past two seasons, and this year led the team as a batter. He played first base last year and also pitched part of the time.

Ennis is two days in advance of Weston's best previous record and seven days ahead of the latter's record for the New York-Chicago walk last year.

Six Bad Husbands and Their Six Unhappy Wives

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

No. 4.—The Jealous Wife.

THE fourth bad husband was a popular man and much sought after socially.

He was dearly loved by his relatives—his mother, his sister and a young cousin who lived with his parents and whose orphaned childhood he had made bright by his care. She was fourteen and his young sister sixteen, when he married the compelling woman.

He had always said he should never marry until he met one who swept away all other considerations, save possessing her. One day at a dinner party in the house of a charming hostess, he met her. And all considerations were at once swept aside, and to win this girl for his wife became the one thought of his heart.

It was impossible for any woman to have greater proof of a man's complete adoration for her than this man gave this girl. Everybody who knew him spoke of his absolute surrender to her charms.

She seemed equally in love, and the wedding followed closely on the announcement of the engagement.

The young wife was pleasing in appearance, cultivated and accomplished, and society thought she was eminently suited to be the wife of a man who had long been such a society favorite.

Welcomed Her With Open Arms

The man's family welcomed her with open arms. So unselfish, and kind, and ever generous had this son, and brother, and protecter been, that he made those who loved him partake of his own generous nature. They had long urged him to marry; to make a home for himself; and when he chose the charming girl they admired for his mate they were all ready to take her into their hearts.

It is seldom one finds a really good mother-in-law. As a rule the mothers of men, especially, are petty and selfish in their attitude to the son's wife. They feel the woman's jealousy at the intrusion of another woman into the man's life. It is the most common phase of feminine weakness and injustice.

But this particular mother was utterly incapable of anything but sweetness, and kindness and tender love and generosity toward her son. She was broad and high in her thoughts of him; and she wanted him to marry and to be happy.

Yet before he had been a husband three months, a troubled look came into the eyes of the good mother; and the sixteen-year-old sister had grown grave; and the fourteen-year-old cousin became a very timid about showing her cousin and protector the impulsive affection which was in her heart.

And the man, the young husband, son, brother and friend, became constrained in the presence of his family.

All this change had come about through the unreasoning jealousy of the young wife.

Despite the loyal love and the romantic passion which she had inspired in the heart of her husband; despite the cordial greeting and affection shown her by his family, she was jealous of the wonderful love he gave any and every one besides herself. She wanted to be the only individual upon whom he bestowed any mark of affection.

Curiously enough, she seemed to consider this state of mind as evidence of her great love; and she made no secret of her jealousy. She expected her husband to feel complimented by her attitude of mind. When he was annoyed or unhappy over it, she accused him of lack of love for her.

"If you really love me, you would understand," she said.

Socially he became a dead letter. His wife had made herself so unpopular, and her jealousy was so pronounced, that society was glad to leave its formal invitations answered by formal cards.

So the Husband Grew Tired

Still there were women who liked the charming and courteous man, and would seek to enjoy a chat with him on every possible occasion. These occasions usually came to the knowledge of the suspicious wife, and resulted in further accusations of deception and intrigue.

And one day the bad husband decided that he had endured all he could endure, and he deliberately gave his wife cause for a divorce on statutory grounds.

"I knew I knew he was deceiving me," the unhappy wife said, and everybody sympathized with her.

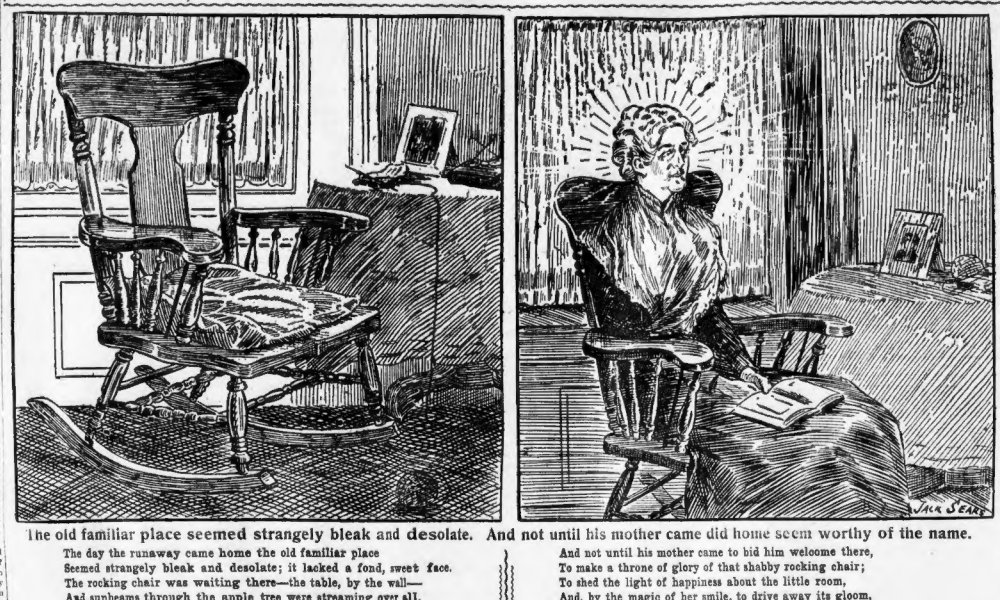
SANITOL keeps the teeth white

Home, Sweet Home

By Jack Sears



The old familiar place seemed strangely bleak and desolate. And not until his mother came did home seem worthy of the name.

The day the runaway came home the old familiar place
Seemed strangely bleak and desolate; it lacked a fond, sweet face.
The rocking chair was waiting there—the table, by the wall—
And sunbeams through the apple tree were streaming over all.
The books, the pictures—everything untouched by time or change;
The home he knew, and yet it seemed but comfortless and strange.

And not until his mother came to bid him welcome there,
To make a throne of glory of that shabby rocking chair;
To shed the light of happiness about the little room,
And, by the magic of her smile, to drive away its gloom,
Did everything seem just the same as in the days of yore,
And home seem worthy of its name—'twas Home, Sweet Home, once more.

"ALL right, only • • • think over what I said, some time."

"I had a good reason for saying what I did."

"I know you had."

"You know I had?" She looked at him askance. She had been on the point of relenting a little, of calming, of being a bit ashamed of herself. But his quiet acquiescence rekindled her resentment. "How do you know? You!" she said bitterly.

"Because I am not what you think I am, altogether."

"I guess you're not," she observed, acidly.

"I'm in the Mill Myself"

"But I don't mean what you mean. I mean you think • • • [illegible] and don't know what trouble is. Well, you're mistaken. I've been up against it the worst way for five years, and I know just how it feels to see other people getting up in the world when you're at the bottom of the heap with no chance of squirming out—to know that they have things you haven't any chance of getting. I've been through the mill myself."

"Why I've kept out of the way, for days and days, rather than let my prosperous friends see how shabby I was. Many's the time I've dodged round the corners to avoid meeting men I knew would invite me to have dinner or luncheon or a drink—or soda—or something, for fear they'd find out that I couldn't treat in return. Many a time I've gone hungry for days and weeks and slept on park benches • • • until an old friend found me and took me home with him."

The ring of sincerity in his manner and tone silenced the girl, impressed her with the conviction of his absolute sincerity. The tumult in her mind quieted. She eyed him with attention, even with interest temporarily unfinged with resentment, and, seeing that he had succeeded in gaining this much ground in her regard, Duncan dared farther, pushing his advantage to its limits.

Presently she grew conscious of herself again, and looked aside, humbled and distressed.

She Asks About the Friend

"I—I won't do it again," she faltered, twisting her hands together.

"Bully for you!" he cried, and with an abrupt, if artificial resumption of his business-like air, turned away to a showcase—to spare her the embarrassment of his regard.

"I didn't think," said the voice behind him; "I didn't mean to—something happened that almost drove me wild and"—

"I know," he said gently.

After a bit she spoke again: "I'll go up and get dinner ready now."

"That's all right," he returned absently. "I'll tend the store."

He heard her footsteps as she crossed to the door and opened it. There followed a pause. Then she came hurriedly back. He faced about to meet her eyes shining with wonder.

"I wanted to ask you," she said hastily, "if—was it this friend you spoke about—that found you in the park—who set you on the road to fortune?"

"That's what he said," Duncan answered, twisting his brows whimsically.

CHAPTER XII.

Duncan's Grubstake

LIKE almost all business Radvilles, Duncan went home for his mid-day meal. It wasn't much of a walk from Sam Graham's store to Miss Carpenter's, and he didn't mind in the least.

On this particular day he was sincerely hungry, but he had much to think about besides, and between the two he just bolted his food and made off, not-food for the store, greatly to the distress of his landlady.

Naturally, knowing nothing about Sam's note, although he knew Pete Willing by sight as the sheriff and town drunkard in one, it didn't worry him at all to discover that gentleman tackling toward the store as he hurried up Beech street, eager to get back to his job. The first intimation that he had of anything serious in Pete's wabbly gait was when he entered practically on Pete's heels.

Pete Willing is the best natured man in the world, as a general rule; drunk or sober, Radville tolerates him for just that quality. On only two occasions is he irritable and unmanageable; when his wife gets after him about the drink (Mrs. Willing is an able-bodied lady of Irish descent, with a will and a tongue of her own, to say nothing of an arm a blacksmith might envy) and when he has a duty to perform in his official capacity. It is in the latter instance that he rises magnificently to the dignity of his position. The majesty of the law in his hands becomes at once a bludgeon and a pandemonium. No one has ever been arrested in Radville, since Pete became sheriff, without the entire community becoming aware of it simultaneously. Pete's voice in moments of excitement carried like a cannonade. Legend Gunn said that Pete had only to put into an argument in front of the Bigelow House to make the entire disorderly population of the Flats, across the river, break for the hills. (This is probably an exaggeration.)

Tall, gaunt, gangling and loose-jointed, Duncan found Pete standing in the middle of the floor, hands in pockets and a noisome stogie thrust into a corner of his mouth, swaying a little (he was almost sober at the moment) and explaining his mission to old Sam in a voice of thunder.

"You Have to Settle"

"I'm sorry about this, Sam," he bellowed, "but there ain't no use wastin' words 'bout it. I'm here on business."

"But what's the matter, Sheriff?" Graham asked, his voice breaking.

"Ah, you know you got a note due at the bank, don't you?"

"Yes, but——"

"Well, it's protested. Y'un'erstand that, don't you?"

"Why, Pete!" Graham swayed, half dazed.

"An' I'm here to serve the papers onto you."

"But—there must be some mistake." Sam clutched blindly for his hat. I'll step over and see Mr. Lockwood. He'll arrange to give me a little more time, I'm sure. He's always been kind, very kind."

"Naw!" Pete bawled, "Mr. Lockwood don't want to see you unless you can get the money. You save yourself the trouble. I'll attend to that."

"But, Pete—Mr. Lockwood said he didn't want to see me!"

"Yah, that's what he said, and I got orders from him, soon's I got judgment to close y'up. And that goes, see?"

"To—to turn me out of the store, Pete?" Graham's world had slipped from beneath his feet. He was overwhelmed, witless, as helpless as a child. And it was with a child's look of pitiful dismay and perplexity that he faced the sheriff.

The father who has fallen short of his child's trust and confidence knows that look. To Duncan its appeal was irresistible. He had his hand in his pocket, clutching the still considerable remains of what Kellogg had termed his grubstake, before he knew it.

"But—there must be some mistake," Graham repeated pleadingly. "It can't be Mr. Lockwood surely wouldn't——"

"Now, there ain't no use whinin' about it!" Willing roared him into silence. "Law is law, and——" He ceased quickly, surprised to find Duncan standing between him and his prey. "What?"—— he began.

"Wait!" Duncan touched him gently on the chest with a forefinger, at the same time catching and holding the sheriff's eye. "Are you," he inquired quietly, "laboring under the impression that Mr. Graham is deaf?"

"What?"——

Duncan turned to Sam, apologetically. "He said 'what.' Did you hear it, sir?"

But by this time Pete was recovering to some degree. "What've you got to say about this?" he demanded cressendo.

"I'll show you," Duncan told him in teh same quiet voice, "what I've got to say if you'll just put the soft pedal on and tell me the amount of that note."

Pete struggled mightily to regain his vanished advantage, but try as he would he could not escape Duncan's cool, inquisitive eye. Visibly he lost importance as he yielded and dived into his pocket. "With interest and costs," he said less stridently, "it figgers up three hundred 'n' eighty dollars 'n' eighty-two cents."

There's no use denying that Duncan was staggered. For the moment his poise deserted him utterly. He could only repeat, as one who dreams "Three hundred and eighty dollars!"

His momentary consternation afforded Pete the opening he needed. The room shook with his regained sense of prestige.

"Yes, three hundred 'n' eighty dollars 'n'—say, you look a here——"

Again the calm forefinger touched him, and like a hypnotist's pass checked the rolling volume of noise. "Listen," begged Duncan; " if you've got anything else to tell me, please retire to the opposite side of the street and whisper it. Meanwhile, be quiet!"

Pete's jaw dropped. In all his experience no one had ever succeeded in taming him so completely—and in so brief a time. He experienced a sensation of having been robbed of his spinal column, and before he could pull himself together was staring in awe, while with one final admonitory poke of his finger Duncan turned and made for the soda counter, beneath which was the till. His scanty roll of bills was in his right hand and there concealed. He stepped behind the counter (old Sam watching him with an amazement no less absolute than Pete's), pulled out the till, beat over it with an assured air, and pushed back the coin slide. Then, quite naturally, he produced—with his right hand—his four-hundred-and-odd dollars from the bill drawer, stood up and counted them with great deliberation.

"One • • • two • • • three • • • four."

Wedding March and the Thrill It Gives Us

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THE other day almost a hundred women and young girls sat in a room listening to a wonderful boy play the piano—a dreamy-eyed genius of a boy, whose fingers picked up the notes and caressed them, or drew sonorous, crashing chords that seemed as though they trembled to the very gates of space.

He played Beethoven and Chopin and Bach and Lechetisky and, last of all, he played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" and "Dance of the Elves."

Through the entire program the audience had been appreciative and delighted; they recognized the boy's genius, but with the final notes of the "Wedding March" there came a change over every face in the room.

Oh, that mystical, marvellous, wedding march, which has thrilled the hearts of more women than any other tune on earth.

Thrill at the Sight of a Bride

There is nothing that touches all women more than the sight of a bride walking down the aisle to the music of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

Men make fun of women because they cry at weddings.

They cry because they are interested, heart and soul, and because the bride appeals to them in all her white purity and because the music is so lovely.

To the older women the other day the music brought memories; to the girls, anticipation.

The women looked back through the years and saw themselves in all their joyous youth, stepping proudly and trustfully out to meet the new life, secure in the love and protection of the man to whom they had given their love.

The girls looked forward rapturously to the day when their turn should come. For both women and girls the music held the same meaning—love.

It is the most wonderful thing in the world, the one thing that nobody can afford to miss. The girl who puts it away from her, or hesitates too long, misses most of the joy of life.

Learn to Know Real Love

Don't be silly and imagine yourself head over heels in love with the first man who chants your praises, but do wait and learn to recognize real love when it comes to you.

"What is real love?" some correspondents ask.

That's a very silly question, and one which every heart must answer for itself.

But of one thing I can assure you, and that is that you'll know what real love is when it comes to you.

You'll wonder how in the world you ever could have imagined yourself in love before.

The reason you thrill to the music of the "Wedding March" is because your heart gives you an idea of how much love you are capable of.

A girl will talk a great deal about love and admire this man and that man, but how her girl friends can be satisfied with the men they accept; and then some fine day she'll march triumphantly off with a funny little specimen of a man who in no way resembles her lordly idea].

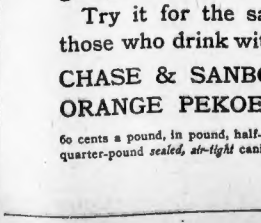
And that's all very well, if she really loves him, because, if she does, she gives him the best that her heart is capable of, and that makes a good woman of her.

She'll Grow to Hate Him

But, if she marries him just because she thinks it necessary to marry, she will probably grow to hate him; and that is the worst fate that can happen to any woman.

If your heart thrills to some other girl's wedding march, just imagine how it will thrill to your own, if you marry the man you love.

Don't be satisfied with a second-hand thrill, when you can have a real, first-class one, if you marry the right man.



WOULD you not attribute a bit of magic to our "Orange Pekoe"?

PERCY THE PRESS AGENT TELLS OF

THE DELIGHTS OF MOTOR BOATING

By HANK

"WHAT'S the matter, Percy?" asked the Show Girl, as her usually blithe companion entered the restaurant holding his head erect with lordly air. "Has somebody left you a million dollars? You look all stuck up."

"Cut it out," growled Percy as he sat down. "I've got a neck so stiff it feels like a ramrod."

"Huh!" sniffed the Show Girl; "rubbering at some swell blonde, I suppose."

"Not this time," replied her companion. "I've been motor boating."

"Motor boating!" echoed the Show Girl. "How can you get a stiff neck?"

"It doesn't when you mote," explained Percy, "but this one certainly kicked a little bit. We started out from Winthrop all right, with the motor working like a clock, got into deep water, and, pa-a-s-t—the motor blew out its left hind spark plug, whimpered at us for a minute and stopped. And it never did go again."

"What did you crank it?" asked the Show Girl, innocently.

"Crank it!" shouted Percy. "Why we cranked the blamed thing until our ribs cracked. We cranked the engine, we abused it, we said nice things to it, we promised it a whole raft of oil all its itself, but nix she wouldn't budge."

"Then what happened?" asked the Show Girl.

"Well, it got dark and the anchor began to drag," said Percy, "but we didn't care, not we. We sang songs, nice clean sea songs, until one of the girls on board saw a red light flashing away off. Oh, how pretty, she said. What is that? That's flag light, where all the rocks are, said somebody, and after that there wasn't any more singing."

"Were you afraid, Percy?" asked the Show Girl treasulously.

"Of course not," answered Percy stoutly. "Well, the wind began to blow and the waves got high, and then—oh chee—I hate to think of it."

"Sick?" ingnited the Show Girl.

Percy nodded.

"You, too?" asked the Show Girl.

"Everybody," replied her companion, "including the guy who owned the boat, asked him if he didn't think cleaning the spark plug might make the engine go, but he looked at me so sorrowfully that I felt ashamed. The next minute I got the same feeling that he had and I didn't care, either, if the old plug never sparked."

"When were you rescued?" asked the Show Girl.

Half-past seven o'clock the next morning," Percy told her. "Say, do you know what Heaven is?"

"Why—er—yes; it's full of golden streets and angels and——" the Show Girl started to say, but Percy cut her short.

"Just you believe it," he said, "it's the galley of a tug where they have hot coffee and the cook has all the angels I know of beaten to a frazzle. Oh, say, if you could have felt the way I did when that dirty old tug saw our distress signal and came over to us, you'd know what real blissful bliss was all right."

"I'm glad you were saved," said the Show Girl. "Did you ever find out what was the matter with the old engine?"

"Never," said Percy; "she just wouldn't go, that's all."

"Why do you call an engine 'she'?" asked the Show Girl.

"That's easy," replied Percy, "because it takes a man to run her. Ha! ha!" Oh, that set snapped the Show Girl.

"Well, from all accounts you men on that boat couldn't run that one. I think a much better explanation of why you call an engine 'she' is because when she won't she won't, and all the men in creation can't make her. How about that, Mr. Smarty?"

"You win, kid," said Percy, "especially touchin' on and appertainin' to a motor boat engine."

RAINCOATS AT RACES CLOAK BRIGHT GOWNS

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Bobbie skirts and Hindoo bonnets, which were the prime features of the first Country Club race day, gave way to raincoats and stiff brimmed sailors yesterday, and of course the horses were not compelled to divide honors with the gayly gowned spectators.

It was a much bedraggled assemblage and those who had braved the elements in fine frocks looked anything but interesting at the close of the day. But there were few who ventured forth in anything but the most sensible of rainy day togery.

Mrs. Sears, who for the greater part of the afternoon was the center of attraction, where she was surrounded by her usual host of admirers, wore a short skirted suit of dark blue serge with a large blue hat trimmed with a dark blue pompon and blue quills.

Many Pretty Girls.

Among the guests whom Miss Sears entertained were Mr. and Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, 2d. Chauncy Mitchell—Mrs. Shaw looking as dainty and girlish as in her girlhood days so recently left behind and wearing a trig blue cloth skirt and a black turban trimmed with white feathers.

An attractive little figure in the group surrounding Miss Sears was Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel of Philadelphia in a smartly tailored gown of black and white check with tunic of black cloth and a large black hat trimmed with white.

One of the prettiest of the young girls was Miss May Josephine Amory, who wore a blue serge suit and a large white hat trimmed with black velvet.

Mitchell Lee wore a dark blue suit under a long rubber slipon and a dark blue hat trimmed with shaded blue and green feathers. Her handsome sister, Miss Marie Lee, who for part of the afternoon was a guest in the A. Henry Higginson box, wore a becoming gown of dark blue and a large black hat.

Mrs. Higginson, who makes an ideal hostess, wore a cinnamon brown raincoat and a bright red roll brimmed sailor.

Meyer Girls Attract Attention.

Another interesting group in the Higginson box was Miss May Loring, who wore a dark blue suit and long rubber raincoat with a dark blue corn-colored sailor turban.

The Misses Julia and Alice Meyer, as usual, attracted much admiring attention and looked especially well, dressed alike in light cotton-covered raincoats and stylish Dresden silk turbans and the new white veils.

Mrs. Hallam Movius (Alice Weat) entertained a lively group of guests in her husband's box and they all wore the new shade, blue suit, long light tan raincoat and light blue turban.

Miss Edith Bird, whose piquantly pretty face and tall little figure always attract attention, wore a close fitting blue suit and a stylish tailor-made raincoat to match in pheasant plumage.

Miss Alice Jaffred, in a mannish suit of dark blue, a stiff brimmed black sailor and oilskin coat, with her hair brushed back without the least attempt at curl or puff, was one of the most enthusiastic of the onlookers and as a hotel guest was early on the paddock among the men looked for all the world like one of them.

Her sister, Miss Margaret Deford, who was a debutante of the season, did not affect the mannish get-ups her sister does, and looked most charming and feminine in a dark blue suit and a dark blue hat.

Mrs. A. Foster Cheney, who made the early arrivals and, like so many others, wore a dark blue suit and dark blue hat.

Mrs. John C. Thorndike, who, as usual, was all smiles and looked well and happy, entertained several of her daughters' friends in the Higginson box. Miss Alice Thorndike was as charming and vivacious as ever and wore an especially becoming gown of lavender cloth under a long raincoat, and a close fitting lavender straw turban. Miss Olivia Thorndike was in light colored dark blue tones with a cream colored straw hat trimmed with black plumes.

Mrs. A. Robeson Sargent, who on the first day of the races received a bird's eye view in her hobble gown and Hindoo turban, yesterday wore a trig suit of dark brown and a small black sailor.

The Foss Twins Dressed Alike.

One of the prettiest girls in the long row of boxes was Miss Elsie Foss, who was very attractive in a dark blue suit and a turban shaped hat of Dresden silk in the lighter tones of blue.

Mrs. Frederick Converse wore a neat walking suit of black and white checked material and a small black hat.

Miss Helen Sears, who was only recently returned from Bar Harbor, where she went for a few days to be near her mother after her return from Europe, wore a black suit with white hair line stripes and a small close black turban trimmed with white feathers.

Mrs. George C. Lee, who looks more like the sister of her two pretty daughters than the mother, wore a black gown under a raincoat of black and white shepherd's check, and a small black turban.

The Foss twins, who are said to be the among the finest of our younger horsewomen, were dressed alike in black and check suits, black sailor hats and long raincoats.

Pretty Ellen Farnsworth was well prepared for the storm and looked very pretty and attractive than ever in her suit of olive drab and her olive hat.

Mrs. Jack in Black Satin.

Miss Margaret Thomas, who by many was voted the handsomest girl there, wore an Alice blue gown and another exaggerated Hindoo turban of white straw trimmed with black velvet, and a long white and gray sprig of admirers in her train, who followed her faithfully all day, and were always seeking the best vantage point from which to view the races especially the water jumps in the steeple chase.

Miss Ruth Anthony, the pretty little blonde belle of the Dedham set, looked very becoming suit of black and white striped material and a large black hat.

Mrs. John L. Gardner entertained several guests at luncheon and looked very handsome in her gown of black satin and black hat trimmed with white plumes.

Mrs. Edward D. Brandegee was among her guests and wore light blue with a turban of a deeper shade.

Vincent Girls Present.

That interesting young matron, Mrs. John S. Ames (Nancy Pilley) was with her sister-in-law, Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, who wore a suit of gray and a white hat, while Mrs. Lothrop Ames wore a dark blue suit and an Alice blue turban.

Mrs. Larz Anderson, who had two boxes at grand, was handsomely attired in a suit of lavender material and a purple turban trimmed with purple feathers.

Among her guests was her niece, Mrs. Charles J. Greenough, 2d. (Peggy Perkins) who wore a dark blue suit and a turban to match, trimmed with white and feathers of a lighter tone.

Miss Susannah Cunningham, in a dark green suit and a green turban, Miss Barbara Burr in a dark blue suit and a light Dresden silk hat trimmed with black chiffon, and Miss Elizabeth Gray in dark blue, were among the many Vincent Club girls on hand.

The Value of Pictures---Moving Pictures Especially ---to Children, and Their Danger

They Convey Ideas to the Mind Directly, AND BY THE EASIEST ROAD

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal Examiner

Ruskin, who had painfully tried with his pencil and pen to reproduce the beauties of architecture and of nature, rejoiced in the discovery of photography. He realized that with photography a man might live and die in his own village and yet be a great traveller. For the photograph brings everything that is worth while in the world before the eyes of the stay-at-home. When the MIND travels the body need not travel.

Have you ever thought how much the photograph has taught you? You know the leaning tower of Pisa, or the great Pyramid of Egypt, or the Palace of St. Mark's in Venice, or the Falls of Niagara—hundreds of the world's wonders. They are clear in your mind, although you may never have actually seen any ONE of those things.

Through the photograph we travel in our imagination, and by the photograph we are tempted to travel PHYSICALLY.

The moving picture—lending a semblance of life—multiplies infinitely the value of photography as a force in education.

And because the moving picture has such power—especially upon the immature minds of children—ALL MOVING PICTURE EXHIBITIONS SHOULD BE RIGIDLY SCRUTINIZED; every picture put in motion before the eyes of children should pass a severe censorship and be officially licensed before its presentation.

No man for profit should be permitted to exhibit any picture that a good father or mother would refuse to put before a gathering of children in the home.

Any picture that would not be exhibited in a well-managed school should under no circumstances be open to the inspection of children—and of this rule there should be the strictest possible enforcement.

Moving pictures, teaching attractively the facts of history, industry, travel and nature, ought to be AND WILL be part of public education in every school.

But there should be the severest punishment for those that exhibit harmful pictures. Unfortunately, of such pictures there are many.

What Are the Prospects of an Electrical Engineer?

Very Good If He Is Able. Very Poor Otherwise

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal Examiner

Here is a letter from a newsdealer:

Dear Sir—Would you kindly oblige me and give space in your editorial to the subject: "What is the future of the coming electrical engineer?" I am taking a course in that profession and I feel that many of my classmates need a little encouragement. Hoping to hear of you in the near future, I remain,

Respectfully yours, A. SNYDER, Newsdealer.

Electrical engineering—the study of electricity in general—will pay a big reward to the COMPETENT man.

The field of electricity is wide; only a fraction of it has been explored and developed. The greatest work remains to be done.

For instance, the man who shall discover a means of transmitting power without wires—from the earth to a flying machine—will solve the problem of aerial navigation, and take long-distance travelling humanity permanently off the earth's surface.

Thousands of inventions are still to be made in the world of electricity. And there is work for thousands of good men in the routine of carrying out and developing what we already know.

The unexplored gold fields of California, or Australia, offered no such possibilities in old days as are now offered in the field of electric research.

But, while the field is good for the man of power, it is dangerous for the little man.

There are undoubtedly, and always will be, plenty of good little places for the good little electrical engineer, or other electrical workmen. There are always lots of "GOOD LITTLE PLACES."

But the big places demand men with original thought, unusual power.

And the electrical field, being new, appeals strongly to the man of imagination—AND IN IT THE COMPETITION IS GREAT, AND SUCCESS DEMANDS REAL ABILITY.

We wish all possible success to the friend who writes us. Certainly he and those that study with him will add to their knowledge. May they also add to their prosperity and usefulness.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

POOR CAR SERVICE.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Permit me to direct your attention to the utter injustice and inadequacy of the car service to those who have to use the Humboldt avenue lines. There is no reason in the world why a passenger should not be given a chance to go direct by surface line from down town to Humboldt avenue, just as he can take a car on Washington street to Warren street and Blue Hill avenue.

But no! The arrangement of the Boston Elevated is such that the woman with a babe in her arms, or the man with a crutch must descend the stairs to the tunnel, and change at Dudley street. Or if the same man or woman is coming from Humboldt avenue into town, he or she must climb the stairs of the tunnel at the end of the journey.

A great residential district is not being served as it should. Let the Elevated establish direct surface connections and use transfers for surface lines, so that the people traveling Humboldt avenue way may be spared the annoyance and pain of climbing stairs. Respectfully yours,

LOUIS STARR.

ROOSEVELT PROFUNDITY AMUSING

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Our great "wiseacre" abroad, with a smattering of learning which he airs, will bring no credit on the country for good manners or good sense.

Roosevelt's "profundity" is amusing. But, then, he is not at all retiring or modest. His speech on "Biological Analogies" is a jumble of pompous sentences, in which it is impossible to discover any sensible or useful idea.

It is simply wonderful that people will cease to wonder at the dreary "high-falutin" with which Roosevelt inundates the world. You ought to shout from his own account in his "Rough Riders," his dissection of two wounded comrades and five unwounded ones on Kettle Hill, and his leaving the field when he was challenged to lead an attack, after having taunted his command with timidity.

Respectfully,

EDMUND R. DODGE.

HATPINS DANGEROUS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The use of long hatpins by women is becoming a serious menace. Last evening I saw half a dozen women whose hatpins extended fully four inches beyond the crown of their hats. This is dangerous.

I wear all styles of hats and do not find it necessary to have a hatpin extend half an inch beyond the crown, and it is held on firmly enough. Long pins seem to be the only ones interested in the public welfare, and I do wish you could help us in this matter.

LIFE PRESERVERS IN AIR

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Is it not time that some thought were given to an aerostatic life preserver, something that would enable the aviator to cast loose from his airship and gently sail him down to terra firma again in case of trouble?

Your newspaper has many bright readers who might be able to produce something of the sort if the need were suggested.

Have Boys Been Killed at the Lyman School?

The Special Legislative Recess Committee Has the Time and Means to Find Out—Public Sentiment Demands a Thorough Investigation of the Boys' Stories

Spasmodic attempts have been made to investigate conditions in the Lyman School for Boys at Westboro. They have never been thorough; they have never succeeded in satisfying anybody; they have never provided the means for correcting the abuses that have been alleged against the institution.

This time the probe should be put in to the bottom. The investigation should be thorough and impartial. It is scandalous that such a state of things should exist in a Massachusetts institution as has been alleged against the Lyman School.

The special committee investigating the school has been made a recess committee to report both to the Governor and Council and to the next Legislature.

Inasmuch as the members of the committee are to be paid for their services and will have plenty of time, six months, in which to conduct their investigation and frame their report, there will be no excuse for their failure to learn the truth and the facts and to prescribe the necessary remedies.

The executive management of the school should be examined. The system of discipline should be carefully studied. The teaching methods should be looked into. And every story of abuse of inmates and of mismanagement should be sifted.

It is not the principal purpose of the Lyman School for Boys to whip them or to starve them into reformation. It is supposed to be a place where wilful boys may be taught to see the errors of their ways and be imbued with a purpose to become good and useful citizens.

Why should wayward youngsters be treated more harshly than the most hardened criminals? The flogging of criminals in our prisons was long ago abolished. Why should it be allowed to exist in a correctional school for boys?

The stories that have been told to the investigating committee show a condition which needs a remedy at once. Whippings with rubber hose have been frequent. They have been so severe, according to the testimony of many boys, that stripes would remain upon the victims' backs from three days to a week.

It has been testified that boys were knocked down with a fist and killed. Such testimony calls for the strictest line of investigation.

If it is true that boys have been killed in this institution, the guilty parties should be made to suffer the penalty for manslaughter, no matter what their positions in the institution may be.

Boys are sent to that school to be reformed, if possible; not to be reformed or beaten to death.

If the charges that boys have been killed in the institution are not true, they should be refuted so strongly and proven untrue so conclusively that no doubt shall exist. The fair name and fame of Massachusetts demand that this shall be done.

While it is well understood that "mama's boys" and "teacher's pets" are not sent to the Lyman School, it is a fact that a great majority of the boys are simply mischievous and have a manly streak that may be successfully appealed to. Incorrigibles are in the great minority.

For infractions of reasonable rules, it is, of course, proper to inflict some punishment. But the punishment should be of such a nature that it will make the boy see that it would be for his best interest to obey the rules and not of such a nature as would simply render him stolid and sullen.

Corporal punishment is not a panacea for all the character defects of a boy. Mild treatment is often a great deal more effective.

It hardly seems necessary that, in such an enlightened Commonwealth as Massachusetts, officers of a reformatory should beat boys with a rubber hose or confine them in solitary detention rooms for three days at a time on a bread and water diet, or should compel them to sleep on a board without a pillow, in order to make them mind.

The problem before this investigating committee is to find out what is the matter with the Lyman School.

No slipshod or hasty investigation will reveal the causes of these too-often repeated public scandals.

It is the duty of this committee to suggest remedies for the prevention of future abuses, in a report that should be exhaustive and conclusive.

The next Legislature, acting upon the committee's report, will be compelled by public sentiment to enact laws which, so far as laws can avail, will have a tendency to preclude a repetition of cases like that of Johnny Newman, the boy found hanging to the door of the Lyman School detention room.

The miserable have no other medicine
But only hope. —Measure for Measure.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

Ma is getting swell, she had a 5 o'clock tea yesterday afternoon & all of her gurl frends was there & two of them had yung men along with them, there escorts, Pa calls them just as they was beginning to slip there hands around the waists of the ladies. Ma was awful glad to see him, because she wanted all the ladies to meet him, but Pa wasent very glad to meet the ladies. He thought he wud cum home early & sprise Ma by asking her & me out to have a ride in the park. He had the autoes out at the door, but he went and sent it away. That made me & Pa mad, & I guess Ma dident enir much to see the ladies so erether.

Husband, sed Ma, I want you to meet these folks. Then Ma introduced Pa to all the ladies, & then she introduced him to the two escorts. I am glad to meet you, sed Pa to the two yung men. He shood there hands till sumthing cracked in there wrists. Pa is awful strong, & he is mean, too. I have often red about escorts, but I have never calm face to face with one (1) before. Pa we got a Billiken statue that is hollow & it is all the time full of sumthing that it calls furious, It is the same color as tea. So the two (2) escorts went in the library with Pa, & Pa made me go & bring them tee water. Wen the two escorts and Pa cam out of the room, the Billiken was empty.

Well, sed one (1) of the escorts, let me lick out around the corner & fil that funny dod up agenn. Rings on my toes an beits on my fingers, sed the escort. Yip a Addy Addy, sed Pa. Jeff this minute! Cuddent I? sed the escort to Pa.

Ma was looking at Pa kind of hard at the time, & the other ladies was looking border on at there escorts.

You dident think you cuim here with tea drinkers, sed one of the escorts. We was only ... ing. We dident cum here to drink tea. As we journey through life let us live like comets.

Husband, sed Ma, what have you been doing with these yung boys? Have you been giving them drinks out of that awful idol of yours? You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Ma sed.

I know it, sed Pa, but they told me in the library that they dident like tea.
